Fraga offers the most comprehensive analysis to date of the causes and consequences of racial and ethnic disparities in voter turnout Examining voting for Whites African Americans Latinos and Asian Americans from the 1800s to the present Fraga documents persistent gaps in turnout and shows that elections are increasingly unrepresentative of the wishes of all Americans These gaps persist not because of socioeconomic or voter suppression but because minority voters have limited influence in shaping election outcomes As Fraga demonstrates voters turn out at higher rates when their votes matter despite demographic change in most elections and most places minorities are less electorally relevant than Whites The Turnout Gap shows that when politicians engage the minority electorate the power of the vote can win However demography is not destiny It is up to politicians parties and citizens themselves to mobilize the potential of all Americans challenge to three conventional premises of many texts they argue that the treatment of racial minorities in America was qualitatively different from that experienced by the white immigrants that racism was not a mere aberration in American Society but was built into the very foundations of the society and that America's experience with minorities was not unique but can instead be located within the mainstream of European expansion and conquest Race Ethnicity and Society will be a standard source for students in the fields of sociology history and political science The Columbia Documentary History of Race and Ethnicity in America Ronald H. Nation, Ethnicity and Race on Russian Television Stephen Hutchings, Vera Tolz, 2015-03-05 Russia one of the most ethno culturally diverse countries in the world provides a rich case study on how globalisation and associated international trends are disrupting and causing the radical rethinking of approaches to inter ethnic cohesion The book highlights the importance of television broadcasting in shaping national discourse and the place of ethno cultural diversity within it It argues that television's role here has been reinforced rather than diminished by the rise of new media technologies Through an analysis of a wide range of news and other television programmes the book shows how the covert meanings of discourse on a particular issue can diverge from the overt significance attributed to it just as the impact of that discourse may not conform with the original aims of the broadcasters The book discusses the tension between the imperative to maintain security through centralised government and overall national cohesion that Russia shares with other European states and the need to remain sensitive to and to accommodate the needs and perspectives of ethnic minorities and labour migrants It compares the increasingly isolationist popular ethnonationalism in Russia which harks back to old fashioned values with the similar rise of the Tea Party in the United States and the UK Independence Party in Britain Throughout this extremely rich well argued book complicates and challenges received wisdom on Russia s recent descent into authoritarianism It points to a regime struggling to negotiate the dilemmas it faces given its Soviet legacy of ethnic particularism weak civil society large native Muslim population and overbearing yet far from entirely effective state control of the media

Race, Ethnicity and Education in Globalised Times Ruth Arber, 2008-02-12 What is the specificity of contemporary racism And what happens to questions of race in a context where multiculturalism is taken for granted Few authors address these kinds of questions with subtlety For the most part questions of racism are treated either as self evident or alternatively as self evidenced The first approach accentuated in everyday life and played out in media exposures is the tendency to treat racism as manifestly self evident We just know what racism is in principle and we just know what it looks like when we see it in practice Dualistic assumptions dominate this sense of identity relations persons are racist or they are not an act is racist or it is not However despite the obviousness of racism in contexts where different people have different seating arrangements on a bus or somebody says I am better than you because your skin colour is different this approach barely comes to terms with the depth of embodied politics and the elusiveness of structures of racism in the contemporary world
