Children's Reading and Mathematics Achievement in Kindergarten and First Grade Kristin Denton, Kristin Denton Flanagan, Jerry West, 2002 This report is the third in a series based on findings about young children s early experiences with school from the Early Childhood Longitudinal Study Kindergarten Class of 1998 99 ECLS K Sponsored by the U S Department of Education National Center for Education Statistics the ECLS K study selected a nationally representative sample of kindergartners in the fall of 1998 and is following these children through the spring of their fifth grade year The study collects information directly from the children their families teachers and schools This report looks at children s school performance during first grade in terms of their reading and mathematical knowledge and skills by relating them to child family and school characteristics The report finds that some of the differences in children s reading and mathematics knowledge and skills by child family and school characteristics that are present as they enter kindergarten persist into the spring of their kindergarten and spring of their first grade year For example poor children consistently score below the national average in both reading and mathematics across the kindergarten year and into the spring of first grade These findings also suggest differences that are beginning to emerge by children s sex By spring of first grade females are more likely to be reading understanding words in context whereas males are more likely be proficient at advanced mathematics multiplication and division However some differences do seem to wane For example in both reading and mathematics Hispanic children s scores tend to move upward toward the national mean over these two school years The longitudinal nature of the ECLS K will enable researchers to track these differences in terms of children s third and fifth grade reading and mathematics performance The report also notes that children who bring certain knowledge and skills with them to kindergarten are likely to be at an advantage in classroom learning compared to peers who do not possess such resources The descriptive analyses of the report show that children who have specific cognitive knowledge and skills are read to frequently possess positive approaches to learning and enjoy very good or excellent general health perform better in reading and mathematics than those without these resources Includes data and standard error tables Appended is a table of regression coefficients for the relationship between children s resources and skills to their spring kindergarten and spring first grade reading performance Contains 18 references HTH

Children's Literacy and Language Development Olivia N. Saracho, 2019-12-13 The importance of the early years in young children's lives and the rigid inequality in literacy achievement are a stimulating backdrop to current research in young children's language and literacy development This book reports new data and empirical analyses that advance the theory of language and literacy with researchers using different methodologies in conducting their study with both a sound empirical underpinning and a captivating analytical rationalization of the results The contributors to this volume used several methodological methods e.g. quantitative qualitative to describe the complete concept of the study the achievement of the study and the study in an appropriate manner based on the study's methodology The contributions to this volume cover a wide range of topics including dual language learners Latino immigrant children children who have hearing disabilities parents and teachers beliefs about language development early literacy skills of toddlers and preschool children interventions multimodalities in early literacies writing and family literacy The studies were conducted in various early childhood settings such as child care nursery school Head Start kindergarten and primary grades and the subjects in the studies represent the pluralism of the globe a pluralism of language backgrounds ethnicity abilities and disabilities This book was originally published as a special issue of Early Child Development and Care Children's Reading of Film and Visual Literacy in the Primary Curriculum Jeannie Hill Bulman, 2017-08-12 This book draws on a longitudinal study which highlights the beneficial impact of film in the primary curriculum It provides detailed accounts of both the reading process as understood within the field of literacy education and of film theory as it relates to issues such as narration genre and audience The book focuses on a small cohort of children to explore how progression in reading film develops throughout a child's time in Key Stage 2 it also examines how the skills and understanding required to read film can support the reading of print and vice versa in an asset model approach Since children's progression in reading film is found to be not necessarily age related but rather built on a period of experience and opportunity to read and or create moving image media Bulman clearly illustrates the importance of the inclusion of film in the primary curriculum The book provides an accessible study to a large audience of primary teachers and practitioners and will be a valuable resource for students and researchers in the fields of education English and media studies Handbook of Children's Literacy Terezinha Nunes, Peter Bryant, 2003-12-31 PETER BRYANT TEREZINHA NUNES The time that it takes children to learn to read varies greatly between different orthographies as the chapter by Sprenger Charolles clearly shows and so do the difficulties that they encounter in learning about their own orthography Nevertheless most people who have the chance to learn to read do in the end read well enough even though a large number experience some significant difficulties on the way Most of them eventually become reasonably efficient spellers too even though they go on make spelling mistakes at any rate if they are English speakers for the rest of their lives So the majority of humans plainly does have intellectual resources that are needed for reading and writing but it does not always find these resources easy to marshal What are these resources Do any of them have to be acquired Do different orthographies make quite different demands on the intellect Do people differ significantly from each other in the strength and accessibility of these resources If they do are these differences an important factor in determining children s success in learning to read and write These are the main questions that the different chapters in this section on Basic Processes set out to answer
