CEF A1 Summer at the Art Café Sue McDonagh, 2018-05-15 She's hitting the road with the wind in her hair and a hunger in her heart. If you won a gorgeous purple motorbike and your husband said you were too fat for leathers and should sell it, would you do as you were told or learn to ride it in secret? Artist and café owner Lucy Daumier has chosen the second option, but learning to ride isn't easy, especially under the critical gaze of prickly motorcycle instructor Ash Connor. Gradually Lucy gets the hang of it and in the process rediscovers the girl she used to be. So begins an exciting summer of new friendships and fun, as well as a realization that there's more to Ash than meets the eye when she's introduced to his seven-year-old daughter Daisy. But Lucy's newfound happiness is at risk as a spiteful family member wants to see her fail.

The Picture of Abjection Tina Chanter, 2008-01-11 A timely and important project that changes our understanding of the role of abjection both in cultural politics and in the structure of film. Ewa Ziarek, State University of New York at Buffalo. Tina Chanter resolves a fundamental problem in film theory by negotiating a middle path between gaze theory approaches to film and spectator studies or cultural theory approaches that emphasize the position of the viewer and thereby take account of race, class, gender, and sexuality. Chanter argues that abjection is the unthought ground of fetishistic theories. If the feminine has been the privileged excluded other of psychoanalytic theory, fueled by the myth of castration and the logic of disavowal, when fetishism is taken up by race theory or cultural theory, the multiple and fluid registers of abjection are obscured. By mobilizing a theory of abjection, the book shows how the appeal to phallic fetishistic theories continues to reify the hegemonic categories of race, class, sexuality, and gender as if they stood as self-evident categories. An intriguing read, especially for those who favor psychological models of criticism in film theory.

Thackeray's European Sketch Books* Siegbert Salomon Prawer,2000 This copiously illustrated study focuses for the first time in any language on the whole range of Thackeray s verbal and graphic portraits and caricatures of European men women and children of his own and earlier periods It takes its readers on what he called a Roundabout Journey in which they look through the eyes of a variety of narrators and personae at natives of France Greece Italy Switzerland the Habsburg Empire Poland Russia Scandinavia the Low Countries Spain Portugal and Turkey There are a few German examples too but these are peripheral here because the author has considered them in depth in a previous book Breeches and Metaphysics Thackeray s German Discourse The contexts in which these portraits and caricatures are set include more or less ironized stereotypes and conventions impressions of landscapes and townscapes trade and diplomatic relations European literature drama showmanship journalism music and many varieties of the pictorial arts Some of the most memorable portrayals characterize past and present writers and artists through descriptive analyses of their work Contemporary prejudices and received opinions relating to class gender and nationality flow freely into such characterizations but they are constantly relativized by the interposition of quirky narrators and a keen sense of the failings and snobberies of Britons observed at home and abroad While reflecting his time in many ways Thackeray s discourse also helped to shape it and a close scrutiny of the European portraits here disengaged from his work should serve to enhance his stature as a shrewd and witty observer a gifted
