developments in cognitive psychology might provide useful knowledge with regard to the design and management of instruction. From a great variety of submitted papers the organizers attempted to select those that represented major problem areas being scientifically studied in several countries. For the organization of this book we chose to categorize the contributions according to the following general areas: I Learning II Comprehension and Information Structure III Perceptual and Memory Processes in Reading IV Problem Solving and Components of Intelligence V Cognitive Development VI Approaches to Instruction. The final paper in the volume is an extensive review and summary by Glaser, Pellegrino, and Lesgold that examines the state of cognitive psychology mainly as reflected in the contributions in this volume with regard to instructional purposes. Each of the sections of the book also begins with a brief overview of the specific topics considered by the individual contributors within that section. Journal of Research on Minority Affairs, 1996 Media Review, 1982
