Submerged Cultural Resource Management James D. Spirek, Della A. Scott-Ireton, 2012-12-06 This vital book is a collection on the various ways archaeologists and resource managers have devised to make available and interpret submerged cultural resources for the public such as underwater archaeological preserves shipwreck trails and land based interpretive media and literature This volume is an invaluable resource to underwater archaeologists cultural and heritage resource managers museum and heritage educators and those studying these professions The Spirit of the City Janna Jones, 2023-06-01 Marshall Fredericks's Detroit sculptures capture the spirit of the Motor City and its dramatic transformation from the 1950s to the present day In this book Janna

Jones analyzes eight of these enormous works of public art situating them and their structures in metro Detroit's distinctive midcentury milieu and bringing much needed critical attention to this sculptor's oeuvre. Sadly some of these artworks have suffered along with the city as it shrank from its postwar zenith. Both the buildings and the sculptures erected for them deserve to be rescued from neglect and then maintained and preserved for the future.

Historic Preservation Technology Robert A. Young, 2008-03-21. This introduction to historic preservation goes well beyond the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and shows how wood, stone, masonry, and metal were used in the past and how adaptive re-use can be employed to bring modern amenities to historic structures. The book covers all aspects of the exterior and interior building fabric, including windows, roofing, doors, porches, and electrical and mechanical systems for both residential and small-scale commercial buildings. Richly illustrated with photographs showing typical elements of historic buildings, decay mechanisms, and remediation techniques, the book also contains a variety of useful case studies and features a companion Website that offers dozens of additional images and resources.

Obsolescence Daniel M. Abramson, 2016-02-12. In our architectural pursuits, we often seem to be in search of something newer, grander, or more efficient, and this phenomenon is not novel. In the spring of 1910, hundreds of workers labored day and night to demolish the Gillender Building in New York, once the loftiest office tower in the world, in order to make way for a taller skyscraper. The New York Times puzzled over those who would sacrifice the thirteen-year-old structure as ruthlessly as though it were some ancient shack. In New York alone, the Gillender joined the original Grand Central Terminal, the Plaza Hotel, the Western Union Building, and the Tower Building on the list of just one generation's razed metropolitan monuments. In the innovative and wide-ranging Obsolescence, Daniel M. Abramson investigates this notion of architectural expendability and the logic by which buildings lose their value and utility. The idea that the new necessarily outperforms and makes superfluous the old, Abramson argues, helps people come to terms with modernity and capitalism's fast-paced change. Obsolescence then gives an unsettling experience, purpose, and meaning. Belief in obsolescence, as Abramson shows, also profoundly affects architectural design. In the 1960s, many architects worldwide accepted the inevitability of obsolescence, experimenting with flexible, modular designs.

from open plan schools offices labs and museums to vast megastructural frames and indeterminate building complexes Some architects went so far as to embrace obsolescence s liberating promise to cast aside convention and habit envisioning expendable short life buildings that embodied human choice and freedom Others we learn were horrified by the implications of this ephemerality and waste and their resistance eventually set the stage for our turn to sustainability the conservation rather than disposal of resources Abramson s fascinating tour of our idea of obsolescence culminates in an assessment of recent manifestations of sustainability from adaptive reuse and historic preservation to postmodernism and green design which all struggle to comprehend and manage the changes that challenge us on all sides
