Regionalism Versus Multilateral Trade Arrangements:

Regionalism versus Multilateral Trade Arrangements Takatoshi Ito, Anne O. Krueger, 2007-12-01 There is no doubt that the open multilateral trading system after World War II was a key ingredient in the rapid economic development of the entire world Especially in Hong Kong Korea Singapore and Taiwan exports increased dramatically both in absolute terms and as a percentage of GNP In the 1980s however preferential trading arrangements PTAs began to emerge as significant factors affecting world trade This volume contains thirteen papers that analyze the tensions between multilateral trading systems and preferential trade arrangements and the impact of these tensions on East Asia The first four chapters introduce PTAs conceptually and focus on the unique political issues that these agreements involve The next five essays present more direct empirical analyses of existing PTAs and their economic effects primarily in East Asia The last four papers concentrate on the outcomes of individual East Asian nations trading policies in specific instances of preferential agreements

Regionalism versus Multilateralism L. Alan Winters, 1999 November 1996 Do the forces that regional integration arrangements set up encourage or discourage a trend toward globally freer trade We don't know yet The literature on regionalism versus multilateralism is growing as economists and political scientists grapple with the question of whether regional integration arrangements are good or bad for the multilateral system Are regional integration arrangements building blocks or stumbling blocks in Jagdish Bhagwati's phrase or stepping stones toward multilateralism As economists worry about the ability of the World Trade Organization to maintain the GATT's unsteady yet distinct momentum toward liberalism and as they contemplate the emergence of world scale regional integration arrangements the EU NAFTA FTAA APEC and possibly TAFTA the question has never been more pressing Winters switches the focus from the immediate consequences of regionalism for the economic welfare of the integrating partners to the question of whether it sets up forces that encourage or discourage evolution toward globally freer trade The answer is We don't know yet One can build models that suggest either conclusion but these models are still so abstract that they should be viewed as parables rather than sources of testable predictions Winters offers conclusions about research strategy as well as about the world we live in Among the conclusions he reaches Since we value multilateralism we had better work out what it means and if it means different things to different people make sure to identify the sense in which we are using the term Sector specific lobbies are a danger if regionalism is permitted because they tend to stop blocs from moving all the way to global free trade In the presence of lobbies trade diversion is good politics even if it is bad economics Regionalism's direct effect on multilateralism is important but possibly more so is the indirect effect it has by changing the ways in which groups of countries interact and respond to shocks in the world economy Regionalism by allowing stronger internalization of the gains from trade liberalization seems likely to facilitate freer trade when it is initially highly restricted The possibility of regionalism probably increases the risks of catastrophe in the trading system The insurance incentives for joining regional arrangements and the existence of shiftable externalities both lead to such a conclusion So too does the view that regionalism is a means to bring trade partners to the multilateral negotiating table because it is essentially coercive Using regionalism for this purpose may have been an effective strategy but it is also risky This paper a product of the International Trade Division International Economics Department was prepared for a conference on regional integration sponsored by the Centre for Economic Policy Research La Coru a Spain April 26 27 1996 and will appear in the conference proceedings Regionalization vs. Globalization Mr.Hideaki Hirata,Mr.Ayhan Kose,Mr.Christopher Otrok,2013-01-22 Abstract Both global and regional economic linkages have strengthened substantially over the past quarter century We employ a dynamic factor model to analyze the implications of these linkages for the evolution of global and regional business cycles Our model allows us to assess the roles played by the global regional and country specific factors in explaining business cycles in a large sample of countries and regions over the period 1960 2010 We find that since the mid 1980s the importance of regional factors has increased markedly in explaining business cycles especially in regions that experienced a sharp growth in intra regional trade and financial flows By contrast the relative importance of the global factor has declined over the same period In short the recent era of globalization has witnessed the emergence of regional business cycles The Politics of Economic Regionalism K. Cai,2010-01-20 While major theories of economic regionalism in the existing literature are primarily constructed to explore institutionalized regional integration European integration in particular the analytical framework developed in this work explains the unique process and pattern of regional integration in East Asia
