Decolonizing Revelation Rufus Burnett Jr., 2018-03-16 At a time when ideas like post racial society and BlackLivesMatter occupy the same space scholars of black American faith are provided a unique opportunity to regenerate and imagine theological frameworks that confront the epistemic effects of racialization and its confluence with the theological imagination Decolonizing Revelation contributes to this task by rethinking or taking a second look at the cultural production of the blues Unlike other examinations of the blues that privilege the hermeneutic of race this work situates the blues spatially offering a transracial interpretation that looks to establish an option for disentangling racial ideology from the theological imagination This book dislocates race in particular and modernity in general as the primary means by which God

s self disclosure is read across human history Rather than looking to the experience of antiblack racism as revelational the work looks to a people group blues people and their spatial sonic and sensual activities Following the basic theological premise that God is a God of life Burnett looks to the spaces where blues life occurs to construct a decolonial option for a theology of revelation
