A reexamination of working class architecture in late nineteenth century urban America As the multifamily building type that often symbolized urban squalor tenements are familiar but poorly understood frequently recognized only in terms of the housing reform movement embraced by the American born elite in the late nineteenth century This book reexamines urban America's tenement buildings of this period centering on the immigrant neighborhoods of New York and Boston Zachary J Violette focuses on what he calls the decorated tenement a wave of new buildings constructed by immigrant builders and architects who remade the slum landscapes of the Lower East Side of Manhattan and the North and West Ends of Boston in the late nineteenth century These buildings highly ornamental facades became the target of predominantly upper class and Anglo Saxon housing reformers who viewed the facades as garish wrappings that often hid what they assumed were exploitative and brutal living conditions Drawing on research and fieldwork of more than three thousand extant tenement buildings Violette uses ornament as an entry point to reconsider the role of tenement architects and builders many of whom had deep roots in immigrant communities in improving housing for the working poor Utilizing specially commissioned contemporary photography and many never before published historical images The Decorated Tenement complicates monolithic notions of architectural taste and housing standards while broadening our understanding of the diversity of cultural and economic positions of those responsible for shaping American architecture and urban landscapes Winner of the International Society of Place Landscape and Culture Fred B Kniffen Award

The Dynamics of Neighborhood Change James Mitchell, Real Estate Research Corporation. Public Affairs Counseling, 1975 This document has evolved over three years to meet the need for a more comprehensive understanding of how neighborhoods change The Office of Policy Development and Research at HUD formulated policy alternatives to stem the rising tide of abandoned residential buildings It showed abandonment as the last stage of a process not a random or isolated phenomenon The failure of programs to counteract and halt the decline of neighborhoods has stemmed mainly from an imperfect understanding of this process There have also been political problems with acting in neighborhoods before the symptoms were painfully evident and from the tendency of program developers to deal with the house rather than the people who own it rent it loan on it or insure it Few programs have recognized that those people were part of a total neighborhood rather than occupants of individual buildings

The process of neighborhood change is triggered and fueled by individual collective and institutional decisions These are made by a myriad of people households bankers real estate brokers investors speculators public service providers police fire schools sanitation etc and others It is a reasonable conclusion that if a concentrated effort is made to affect these decisions then neighborhood decline can be slowed halted or in some circumstances reversed

People, Plans, and Policies Herbert J. Gans,1994-06-16 The primary theme of this collection of essays is that the cities basic problems are poverty and racism and until these concerns are addressed by bringing about racial equality creating jobs and instituting other reforms the generally low quality of urban life will persist Gans argues that the individual must work to alter society He believes that not only must parents have jobs to improve their children s school performance but that the country needs a modernized New Deal a more labor intensive economy and a thirty two hour work week to achieve full employment Other controversial ideas presented in this book include Gans s opposition to the whole notion of an underclass which he feels is the latest way for the nonpoor to unjustly label the poor as undeserving He also believes that poverty continues to plague society because it is often useful to the nonpoor He is critical of architecture that aims above all to be aesthetic or to make philosophical statements is doubtful that planners can or should try to reform our social or personal lives and thinks we should concentrate on achieving individual public policies until we learn how to properly plan as a society

The New Urban Reality Paul E. Peterson,2001-06-07 America s inner cities particularly those in older industrial metropolitan areas have declined sharply in both population and employment over the past two decades How much of this change is due to technological advances in transportation communication and manufacturing How much of it is due to the changing racial composition of the central cities Can any set of public policies retard or reverse the decline of the industrial cities This book presents an interdisciplinary collection of papers addressing these questions In the introduction editor Paul E Peterson discusses the ways in which adverse economic and racial changes interact and urges more realistic federal policies to counteract these changes In Part 1 The Processes of Urban Growth and Decline sociologist John D Kasarda analyzes the growing mismatch between inner city jobs and residents and geographer Brian J L Berry discusses the economics of inner city gentrification Racial change is the subject of Part II sociologist Elijah Anderson depicts race relations in a gentrifying inner city neighborhood sociologist William J Wilson delineates the social and economic problems of inner city blacks and political scientist Gary Orfield calls for bold efforts to reverse the continuing urban pattern of racial segregation Part III looks at the way cities have responded to economic and racial change Economist Kenneth A Small discusses the impact of transportation policy political scientist Herbert Jacob finds that increasing efforts to control urban crime have not been effective and sociologist Terry Nichols Clark emphasizes the effect of political factors on the fiscal condition of cities Economist Anthony Downs reviewing the issues raised by the other authors sees little hope for racial integration as the central social strategy for solving urban problems but does see hope in the internal resources of America s minority communities Compendium of Research Contracts and Reports United States.
