Resource Extraction And Market Structure Lecture Notes In Economics And Mathematical Systems Vol 263:

Dynamic Models of the Firm Mark W.J. Blok, A.T. Kearney, 2012-12-06 This book contributes to the scientific field of optimal control theory applied to dynamic models of the firm. It discusses optimal investment financing and production policies of the firm that have to deal with a variety of aspects such as financial constraints, start up costs, business cycles, increasing returns to scale, production life cycles and experience curves. In contrast to many other publications on this subject, here, in combination with an analytical approach, the dynamic optimization problems are solved numerically with the aid of a powerful computer and specific programs for optimizing non linear functions of a finite number of variables and non linear constraints.

Adaptive Learning by Genetic Algorithms Herbert Dawid, 2012-12-06 I started to deal with genetic algorithms in 1993 when I was working on a project on learning and rational behavior in economic systems. Initially, I carried out simulations in an overlapping generations model but soon got dissatisfied with the complete lack of theoretical foundation for the observed behavior. Thus, I started to work on a mathematical representation of the behavior of a simple genetic algorithm in the special setup of an interacting population of economic agents and step by step arrived at the results collected here. However, I believe that much more can and has to be done in this field. I would like to thank Gustav Feichtinger who not only supervised my doctoral thesis but always supported and encouraged me throughout the last few years. Special thanks are also due to K. Hornik, A. Mehlmann and M. Kopel who contributed largely to the work. During the preparation of the monograph, I also benefited from helpful comments of A. Geyer-Schulz, G. Rote, G. Tragler and A. Rahman. Special thanks to W. A. Müller from Springer Verlag for his support. Financial support from the Austrian Science Foundation under contract number P9112 S0Z is gratefully acknowledged.

Books in Print, 1991 Subject Guide to Books in Print, 1996 On Overlapping Generations Models with Productive Capital Günther Lang, 2012-12-06 This book was born out of a five years research at Sonderforschungsbereich 303 by the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft DFG at Rheinische Friedrich Wilhelms Universität Bonn and was approved as my doctoral thesis by the Rechts und Staatswissenschaftliche Fakultät in December 1994. It was my former colleague Wolfgang Peters who had drawn my attention to overlapping generations models and to problems of intergenerational efficiency and distribution. The subtle connection between the latter two has been fascinating me from the very beginning. Redistribution of the results of free trade can become necessary from the point of view of efficiency although no externalities hamper the development of an economy. In spite of being a matured part of economics, neoclassical growth theory had left many questions unsolved, some of them even unrecognized by a large part of our profession. I took up the challenge to contribute to the investigation of some of these thorny problems. One of these issues is the often quoted idea of the intergenerational contract. Although intergenerational transfers can improve intertemporal efficiency, the design of pension schemes to achieve an improvement of well being of some generations without hurting that of any other is not an easy task in an economy with flexible prices. Quite frequently, only interest rate and growth rate are taken into account when deciding on whether a generation wins or loses Batching and Scheduling Carsten Jordan,2012-12-06 In some manufacturing systems significant setups are required to change production from one type of products to another The setups render the manufacturing system inflexible as for reacting to changes in demand patterns hence inventories must be maintained to guarantee an acceptable customer service In this environment production scheduling faces a number of problems and this work deals with mathematical models to support the scheduling decisions Some more background and motivation is given in the following sections as well as in a case description in Section 1 3 The synopsis in Section 1 4 outlines the topics of the work 1 1 Motivation of the Planning Problem Consider the production of metal sheets in a rolling mill If the width of the next type of sheets is greater than the width of the preceding type then the roll needs a setup during the rolling process the edges of a sheet cause grooves on the rolls surface thus the surface must be polished if a greater width is run next Sheets with a smaller width can be run directly without a setup Another example in which setups are sequence dependent is a line where cars are sprayed if the color of the paint changes the cleaning of the tools requires a setup depending on the sequence of the colors Only a small setup may be needed for changing from a light to a dark color but a thorough cleaning of the tools is 2 CHAPTER 1 Journal of Economic Literature ,1987 Aanwinsten van de Centrale Bibliotheek (Queteletfonds) Bibliothèque centrale (Fonds Quetelet),1987 Books in Series, 1876-1949 R.R.
