examines the psycho social and political repercussions of prevailing approaches to child rearing. Learn why warm and nurturing parents produce secure altruistic children who go on to form progressive political beliefs while the children of punitive authoritarian parents are bound by fear and shame to support right wing causes and candidates. If you've ever wondered how big a role parenting plays in shaping personality and the political and cultural values of the broader society, this book is a must read.

Night Lessons Paul H. Deal, 2001-05-29 Rudy admires and fears his white supremacist stepfather Judd. Under his tutelage, he joins Aryan Salvation, an organization that proclaims white people the highest level of creation, Jews the lowest, and all others muds. It also claims the Holocaust of World War II is a Jewish myth fabricated to gain sympathy. After participating in a botched graffiti attack on a synagogue, Rudy questions his fitness as an Aryan. Then, when asked to prepare a report for his high school history class, he decides he can best serve his cause by proving the Holocaust never happened. He begins certain of the outcome but quickly finds his task more difficult than he imagined. His investigation leads him to letters containing a frightening family secret and to a diary written by a boy who died half a century earlier. The letters and diary weave a terrifying tale that invades his sleep and causes nightmares that transport him into the Holocaust. As his night lessons expose the lies underpinning Aryan Salvation, he rejects Judd's bigotry and sees Aryan Salvation as a tool to bring about a new horror. His vow to stop it almost makes him one of its victims.

Who Do We Think We Are? Philip Yale Nicholson, 1999 In this timely and well argued book, author Philip Nicholson offers a provocative explanation of the force and place of race in modern history, showing that race and nation have a linked history. Using the deliberately ironic metaphor of the double helix, the author shows the close historical connection of race and nation as each interrelates with the other in shaping and carrying social and institutional practices over many centuries. Five themes recur throughout the work: modernity is built on the twin pillars of race and nation; national instability, rivalry, and imperial conquest; outside of dynastic, religious, or feudal disputes, evoke differential racial, human, social categories, loyalties, and mythologies; racial vilification emerges out of material and cultural expropriation; racial degradation is typically the inverse projection of dominant national, normative values, beliefs, or ideals; and race and nation share in the twists and turns of modern history and are inseparably linked and interdependent.

Terrorism and Societies Dr Stephen Vertigans, 2013-03-28 Which socializing agents are influential in people joining terror groups? What ideologies do terror groups hold? Which aspects of societies and social contexts contribute towards groups forming and people joining them? This book considers a range of influential terror groups from the last 40 years, exploring relationships between people, local and global social processes, and activities that result in acts of terrorism. Examining Islamic groups alongside nationalist, red, and far right organizations, Stephen Vertigans identifies important similarities in the social contexts, experiences of members, and some of their demands. Key questions are applied to a range of case studies of contemporary relevance. The groups studied originated from Europe, the United States, Asia, and Africa and are associated with religion, nationalism, pro-state terrorism, militias, and racism. Each chapter offers the reader a clear understanding about why particular terror groups form while comparative analysis draws out commonalities and distinctions Dismantling the Big Lie Steven L. Jacobs, Mark Weitzman, 2003 Table of contents
