Children Reading Pictures Evelyn Arizpe, Morag Styles, 2004-08-02 This book describes the fascinating results of a two year study of children's responses to contemporary picturebooks. Children of primary school age from a range of backgrounds read and discussed books by the award winning artists Anthony Browne and Satoshi Kitamura. They then made their own drawings in response to the books. The authors found that children are sophisticated readers of visual texts and are able to make sense of complex images on literal visual and metaphorical levels. They are able to understand different viewpoints, analyse moods, messages and emotions and articulate personal responses to picturebooks even when they struggle with the written word. With colour illustrations and interviews with the two authors whose books were included in the study, this book demonstrates how important visual literacy is to children's understanding and development. Primary and Early Years teachers, literacy coordinators and all those interested in children's literature will find this a captivating read. Reading Medieval

Images Elizabeth Sears, Thelma K. Thomas, 2002 What is it that art historians do when they approach works of art? What kind of language do they use to describe what they see? How do they construct arguments using visual evidence? What sorts of arguments do they make? In this unusual anthology, eighteen prominent art historians specializing in the medieval field—European, Byzantine and Islamic—provide answers to these fundamental questions, not directly but by way of example. Each author, responding to invitation, has chosen for study a single image or object and has submitted it to sustained analysis. The collection of essays, accompanied by statements on methodology by the editors, offers an accessible introduction to current art historical practice. Elizabeth L. Sears is Associate Professor of the History of Art, University of Michigan. Thelma K. Thomas is Associate Professor of the History of Art and Associate Curator of the Kelsey Museum, University of Michigan. The Daily 5 Gail Boushey, Joan Moser, 2006 Do you love teaching but feel exhausted from the energy you expend cajoling, disciplining and directing students on a daily basis? Are you questioning the value of busy work but afraid that ceasing from such activities will lead to chaos in the classroom? Have you heard the phrase "work smarter, not harder" but don't have a clue how to start? If so, you'll want to meet The Sisters, Gail Boushey and Joan Moser. They set about designing a structure that would ensure all children were working at their level of challenge while taking responsibility for their learning and behaviour, and that would provide meaningful instruction blocks without extensive preparation time for teachers. Thus, the Daily Five was born. Based on literacy learning and motivation research, the Daily Five has been practiced and refined in their own classrooms for 10 years and shared with thousands of teachers throughout the United States. The Daily Five is a series of literacy tasks: reading to self, reading with someone, writing word work and listening to reading, which students complete daily while the teacher meets with small groups or confers with individuals. Reading Women Jennifer Phegley, Janet

Helping Your Children with Reading and Writing at Home Mary A. Colbert, William P. Colbert, 2009-01-31 Helping Your Children with Reading and Writing at Home By Mary Ann Colbert Dr William P Colbert There really is no place like home when it comes to developing competent readers and writers And with the aid of our new world changing guide the process and the goal of developing lifelong readers and writers will be greatly facilitated Many years ago we set about finding out what type of reading and writing help parents and other adults were giving children and how it was working We asked everyone and anyone who would talk with us and we came up with some rather startling information to share in our guide Now talking with parents grandparents adults and children about the reading and writing activities they have experienced at home is second nature to us Through the years we have discovered that a great many things are happening in American homes relative to helping children in these areas and even greater things are possible The purpose of our book We like to call it a guide is to awaken parents grandparents and other adults who work with children to the great possibilities that are open to them that will revolutionize learning now and for future generations The ideas suggestions and strategies in our guide step off from the interests of the learners which are the best indicators of what the children are ready and able to learn next as opposed to curriculums and textbooks which often have an iron grip on what is available for young students to learn We show our readers how to take advantage of the great knowledge they have about their children and how to use it to guide their children's learning and more especially to identify what is the next appropriate step for their children to take in their learning All this is done in the home setting with family members participating and sharing the fruits of their learning labors Besides giant leaps in learning families can expect outstanding growth in family interpersonal relationships The family is actually drawn closer together by sharing their diverse interests At the onset of the guide adults are asked to compare their thinking on reading and writing learning with some of the experts in the field via a true false checklist This technique totally involves parents with the book from the start and parents are often surprised to see how their thinking coincides with experts in the field The next section contains three case studies that illustrate in detail exactly what some very effective adults did to further the reading and writing skills of the children with whom they worked The third sections contain some precise strategies that parents and other adults can begin using today with their children The next sections identify what children see as effective reading and writing strategies that are used by parents and their teachers Section five is a summary of some ideas of some great teachers of reading and writing The ideas here are undergirded by some sound learning principles which every adult who works with children will want to know about The final section ends much like the guide begins with a checklist of some true false items that will help guide parents and other adults to increasing success in helping their children with reading and writing at home

Resources in Education , 1987-10 Processing of Visible Language Paul A. Kolars, 2013-11-21 The second symposium on processing visible language constituted a different mix of participants from the first Greater emphasis was given to the design of language both in its historical development and in its current display and to practical questions associated with machine implementation of language in the interactions of person and computer and in the characteristics of the physical and environmental objects that affect the interaction Another change was that a special session on theory capped the proceedings Psychologists remained heavily involved however both as contributors to and as discussants of the work presented The motivation of the conferences remains one of bringing together graphic designers engineers and psychologists concerned with the display and acquisition of visible language The papers separately tended to emphasize the one of the three disciplines that mark their authors field of endeavor but are constructed to be general rather than parochial Moreover within the three disciplines papers emphasized either the textual or the more pictorial aspects For example a session on writing systems ranged from principles that seem to characterize all such systems to specific papers on ancient Egyptian writing modern Korean and English shorthand The complementary session on the nontextual media opened with a discussion of general principles of pictorial communication and included papers on communicating instructions general information or religious belief through designs and other pictorial forms as well as a discussion of misrepresentation An Experimental Study of the Beginning Reading of Deaf-mutes Helen Thompson, 1927
