Readings In General Psychology:

Readings in General Psychology Edward Stevens Robinson, 1923 Readings in General Psychology Edward Stevens Robinson, 1923 We are publishing this volume in the belief that the student beginning the study of psychology can profitably read much more material than is commonly assigned him It is hardly the purpose of a first course to train the student to such a point that he can read the technical articles of the psychological journals but he should have enough practice to enable him to read with intelligence the more general literature of the subject whatever its point of view But the accomplishment of even this latter purpose is becoming increasingly difficult Our elementary courses contain so many students that library assignments are in many cases all but impossible In light of this fact we feel that instructors will welcome a single volume which contains an ample and representative supply of reading materials Such a volume has an advantage over a library reserve shelf in that the students will not be discouraged by being unable to reach their assignments when and where they find it convenient to study It has an advantage over a second textbook in that it contains more than another often conflicting system of description In those cases where the instructor is interested in presenting his own system this volume will furnish reading materials which will be useful without coming into constant conflict with the lectures While we do not believe that differences of opinion should be hidden from the student we are convinced that constant conflict between instructor and text is very bad from a pedagogical standpoint We have chosen these readings for the beginning student and we hope that few of them will be beyond his comprehension Now and again terms appear in the readings which have not previously been defined Usually where the meaning of such terms cannot be inferred from the context we have defined them in footnotes It is no disadvantage however if the student is occasionally forced to use a dictionary The exercises included with the readings are not in most cases questions the answers to which can be taken directly from the text Rather they are problems which the student should be in a position to attack when he has mastered a given reading or group of readings In many cases these exercises are designed to bring out important points with which the readings do not happen to deal In other cases they are designed to bring up problems which will hardly be solved by either instructor or student but which may profitably be discussed Where suitable materials could be found in the sources we have used them Where these sources were too technical too long or too saturated with dead issues we have taken more suitable restatements We have exercised considerable freedom in using certain excerpts which are not particularly representative of the writers from whom they are taken While we have made slight changes in many of the selections these changes are practically all of two kinds First sentences or words have been eliminated in order to avoid issues which could not be discussed at length and which we did not feel could be handled justly in a very brief way Second sentences or words have been modified or eliminated in order to disconnect a selection from its original setting In neither of these cases we feel sure have meanings been attributed to an author which he himself did not intend While we have arranged the contents of this volume along conservative lines the readings can be taken up in almost any order We have put side by side passages written from different points of view and though we believe the student should get used to these differences and learn to see beyond them there is no reason why the instructor should not emphasize certain facts and theories by a judicious choice from among these materials
