Carbon Footprints as Cultural-Ecological Metaphors Anita Girvan, 2017-10-10 Through an examination of carbon footprint metaphors this book demonstrates the ways in which climate change and other ecological issues are culturally and materially constituted through metaphor The carbon footprint metaphor has achieved a ubiquitous presence in Anglo North American public contexts since the turn of the millennium yet this metaphor remains under examined as a crucial mediator of political responses to the urgent crisis of climate change Existing books and articles on the carbon footprint typically treat this metaphor as a quantifying metric with little attention to the shifting mediations and practices of the carbon footprint as a metaphor This gap echoes a wider gap in understanding metaphors as key figures in mediating more than human relations at a time when such relations profoundly matter As a timely intervention this book addresses this gap by using insights from environmental humanities and political ecology to discuss carbon footprint metaphors in popular and public texts This book will be of great interest to researchers and students of environmental humanities political ecology environmental communication and metaphor studies

Rethinking Postmodern Subjectivity Zuzanna Ladyga, 2009 What is postmodern literary subjectivity How to talk about it without falling in the trap of negative hyper essentialism or being seduced by exuberant lit speak One way out of this dilemma as this book suggests is via a redefinition of the concept in the context of Emmanuel Levinas and his radical ethics By defining subjectivity as an ethically charged act of language Levinas provides a fresh perspective on the often trivialized aspects of postmodern poetics such as referentiality and affect construction strategies The foregrounding of the ethical dimension of those poetic elements has far reaching consequences for how we read postmodern texts and understand postmodernism in general Thus to prove the benefits of the Levinasian approach the author applies it to the work of the canonical American postmodernist Donald Barthelme and explains the distinctly ethical character of his apparently surfictional experiments

The Subjective Self Harwood Fisher, 2001-01-01 For all their strides in understanding how we create and think about cultures psychologists linguists and logicians have had difficulty explaining how we conceive our selves how the self can in fact be both the object and the subjective originator of its surroundings Harwood Fisher s purpose in this far reaching interdisciplinary book is to depict the subjective self in its true complex duality In The Subjective Self Fisher argues that the key to depicting both aspects of the self simultaneously and thus modeling it more holistically than before is to visualize the self in a logical space From an origin point inside this space the self tries out metaphors and launches categories to logically order what it wants sees and encounters This is a creative cognitive process metaphoric framing by which the self invents new forms and depicts new organizations of its experiences impressions and information It is also a generative linguistic process bracketing by which the self can step outside its own expressed thoughts gain new levels of awareness re position itself as an agent responsible for its ideas and statements and in short empower its own identity The framing sets in motion versatile mental categories forms that are projected into mental space where they become objectified The bracketing sets in motion the logical bounds of the I stabilizing the individual s identity and giving thrust to the subjective self s dynamic causal role In elaborating this theory Fisher extends the ideas of Kurt Lewin Jean Piaget and C S Peirce among others By drawing on each of these thinkers he is able to bring their common themes of perspective and construction together in his portrait of the self as a creative iconic space The Camera-Eye

Queer Democracy Daniel D. Miller, 2021-08-25 Queer Democracy undertakes an interdisciplinary critical investigation of the centuries-old metaphor of society as a body drawing on queer and transgender accounts of embodiment as a constructive resource for reimagining politics and society. Daniel Miller argues that this metaphor has consistently expressed a desire for social and political order grounded in the social body's imagined normative shape or morphology. The consistent result from the concord discourses of the pre-Christian Stoics all the way through to contemporary nationalism and populism has been the suppression of any dissent that would unmake the social body's presumed normativity. Miller argues that the conception of embodiment at the heart of the metaphor is a fantasy and that negative social and political reactions to dissent represent visceral dysphoric responses to its reshaping of the social body. He argues that social body's essential queerness, defined by fluidity and lack of a fixed morphology, spawns queer democracy expressed through ongoing social and political practices that aim to extend liberty and equality to new social domains. Queer Democracy articulates a new departure for the ongoing development of theoretical articulations linking queer and trans theory with political theory. It will appeal to both academic and non-academic readers engaged in research on political theory, populism, US religion, gender studies, and queer studies.

Metaphors Shaping Culture and Theory Herbert Grabes, 2009

Forms of Intersubjectivity Beatrice Beebe, 2005-08-17 With new discussions by Theodore Jacobs and Regina Pally. Adult psychoanalysis has approached the study of intersubjectivity by concentrating primarily on the verbal dialogue, an explicit mode of communication. Infant research, on the other hand, focuses on nonverbal communication and implicit modes of action sequences operating largely out of awareness, such as interactions of gaze, facial expression, and body rhythms. This book proposes that an integration of these two approaches is essential to a deeper understanding of the therapeutic action. The authors use a dyadic systems model of self and interactive regulation as a lens for comparing diverse theories of intersubjectivity both in adults and infants. Building on the definition of intersubjectivity in infancy as correspondence and matching of expressions, the authors offer an expanded view of the presymbolic origins of intersubjectivity. They address the place of interactive regulation problems with the concept of matching the roles of self-regulation and of difference and the balance of self and interactive regulation. An adult treatment of early trauma is described through detailed clinical case material illustrating both the verbal narrative and the implicit action dialogue operating largely outside of awareness. This book includes new discussions by Theodore Jacobs arguing that nonverbal communication is vitally important to psychoanalysis and by Regina Pally arguing that aspects of this book have parallels in neuroscience.

Figurative Thought

and Language in the Human Universe Mario Brdar, Goran Milić, Dubravka Vidaković Erdeljić, Rita Brdar-Szabó, 2021-08-17
The volume focuses on the interaction between figurative language embodiment and society and culture from various theoretical and applied perspectives and methodologies. It bears witness to the vibrancy of research into figurative language and the role of embodiment with conceptualization motivated not just by our physical interaction with the external world but also by social and cultural phenomena. The topics explored here include the impact of figurative language on all levels of linguistic analysis including grammar, discourse and the relationship between language and emotions. Analysing Academic Writing Louise Ravelli, Robert A. Ellis, 2005-12-07 This volume covers the writing not only of native speakers of the language in which they are being taught but also that of those to whom the language of pedagogy is secondary. Australian editors. Figures of Natality Joseph D. O'Neil, 2017-01-26 Figures of Natality reads metaphors and narratives of birth in the age of Goethe 1770-1832 as indicators of the new, the unexpected and the revolutionary. Using Hannah Arendt's concept of natality, Joseph O'Neil argues that Lessing, Goethe and Kleist see birth as challenging paradigms of Romanticism as well as of Enlightenment, resisting the assimilation of the political to economics, science or morality. They choose instead to preserve the conflicts and tensions at the heart of social, political and poetic revolutions. In a historical reading, these tensions evolve from the idea of revolution as Arendt reads it in British North America to the social and economic questions that shape the French Revolution, culminating in a consideration of the culture of the modern republic as such. Alongside this geopolitical evolution, the ways of representing the political change too, moving from the new as revolutionary eruption to economic metaphors of birth. More pressing still is the question of revolutionary subjectivity and political agency, and Lessing, Goethe and Kleist have an answer that is remarkably close to that of Walter Benjamin, as that secret index through which each past age is pointed toward redemption. Figures of Natality uncovers this index at the heart of scenes and products of birth in the age of Goethe.
