Richard D. McBride II

Relationship Maitreya:

Domesticating the Dharma Richard D. McBride II, 2007-10-31 Western scholarship has hitherto described the assimilation of Buddhism in Korea in terms of the importation of Sino Indian and Chinese intellectual schools. This has led to an overemphasis on the scholastic understanding of Buddhism and overlooked evidence of the way Buddhism was practiced on the ground. Domesticating the Dharma provides a much needed corrective to this view by presenting for the first time a descriptive analysis of the cultic practices that defined and shaped the way Buddhists in Silla Korea understood their religion from the sixth to tenth centuries. Critiquing the conventional two tiered model of elite versus popular religion, Richard McBride demonstrates how the eminent monks, royalty and hereditary aristocrats of Silla were the primary proponents of Buddhist cults and that rich and diverse practices spread to the common people because of their influence. Drawing on Buddhist hagiography, traditional narratives, historical anecdotes and epigraphy, McBride describes the seminal role of the worship of Buddhist deities, in particular the Buddha, Kṛmuni, the future Buddha Maitreya and the bodhisattva Avalokiteśvara in the domestication of the religion on the Korean peninsula and the use of imagery from the Maitreya cult to create a symbiosis between the native religious observances of Silla and those being imported from the Chinese cultural sphere. He shows how in turn Buddhist imagery transformed Silla intellectually, geographically and spatially to represent a Buddha land and sacred locations detailed in the Avataśaka Sūtra. Huayan, Jing Hwa, m. ky. ng. Emphasizing the importance of the interconnected vision of the universe described in the Avataśaka Sūtra, McBride depicts the synthesis of Buddhist cults and cultic practices that flourished in Silla Korea with the practice oriented Hwa m tradition from the eighth to tenth centuries and its subsequent rise to a uniquely Korean cult of the Divine Assembly described in scripture. Battling the Buddha of Love Jessica Marie Falcone, 2018-09-15 Battling the Buddha of Love is a work of advocacy anthropology that explores the controversial plans and practices of the Maitreya Project, a transnational Buddhist organization as it sought to build the world's tallest statue as a multi million dollar gift to India. Hoping to forcibly acquire 750 acres of occupied land for the statue park in the Kushinagar area of Uttar Pradesh, the Buddhist statue planners ran into obstacle after obstacle including a full scale grassroots resistance movement of Indian farmers working to Save the Land. Falcone sheds light on the aspirations, values and practices of both the Buddhists who worked to construct the statue as well as the Indian farmer activists who tirelessly protested against the Maitreya Project. Because the majority of the supporters of the Maitreya Project statue are converts to Tibetan Buddhism, individuals Falcone terms non heritage practitioners, she focuses on the spectacular collision of cultural values between small agriculturalists in rural India and transnational Buddhists hailing from Portland to Pretoria. She asks how could a transnational Buddhist organization committed to compassionate practice blithely create so much suffering for impoverished rural Indians. Falcone depicts the cultural logics at work on both sides of the controversy and through her examination of these logics she reveals the divergent competing visions of Kushinagar's potential futures.
