Advances in Exercise and Health for People With Mobility Limitations David Hollar, 2018-10-17 The purpose of this book is to provide public health disability and rehabilitation professionals and practitioners evidence based science with respect to health disparities faced by people with disabilities especially people with mobility limitations alternative methods of rehabilitation and exercise science for this population assistive device technology and improved access to health care employment and social participation According to the National Institute on Disability Independent Living and Rehabilitation Research NIDILRR approximately 57 million Americans live with a disability Disability severity and types vary considerably such that each individual with a disability faces unique physical social and environmental barriers in order to enjoy quality of life and full participation in society A large research literature shows that people with disabilities face substantial employment and health disparities compared to people without disabilities. People with mobility limitations often experience secondary conditions to compound their primary disability. Hollar 2013 and Hollar and Lewis 2015 showed that people with mobility limitations were significantly more likely to experience obesity and lack of access to physical exercise. Other studies have shown that access to proper physical examination facilities and equipment remain a substantial barrier in many clinics and hospitals despite the enactment of the Americans with Disabilities Act 25 years ago. Research on alternative exercise programs and new assistive device technologies offers promise to improve physical functioning and exercise for people with mobility limitations. Furthermore, increased focus on biopsychosocial over traditional medical models for disability will help policymakers and the public to recognize the complex contextual issues e.g. personal, social, environmental that affect the lives of people with disabilities. Readership includes public health practitioners and educators, disability and rehabilitation researchers, clinicians, and sports medicine practitioners and disability advocates. There have been general handbooks on disability, but advances in technology and alternative exercise programs, as well as novel disability health programs, are dispersed in the research literature. This book will help to highlight these programs for health policy experts, especially given the high health and social disparities experienced by this population.

Public Health John Walley, John Wright, 2010-01-14. Many of the health problems in the developing world can be tackled or prevented through public health measures such as essential health care, improved living conditions, water sanitation, nutrition, immunization, and the adoption of healthy lifestyles. Public Health is an action guide to improving public community health with a particular focus on low middle income countries. It explains public health approaches to developing effective health services and preventive programmes. This Second Edition contains real examples, illustrations, and case histories to bring an important subject to life for the reader. The book covers the essential clinical services and preventive programmes including those for TB, HIV, AIDS, malaria, diarrhoeal diseases, and the integrated management of childhood and adult illnesses. Practical methods are given for assessing health needs and working with communities to develop health services, and the development of hospital, health centre, and community health services, particularly mother, neonatal, and child health services, are explained. Additionally, gender, social, and economic influences on communities' health are explored. The clear language that is used throughout the book to describe the key public health skills such as epidemiology, managing medicines, communicable and non-communicable disease control, health financing, and implementing health services and programmes will be accessible and highly valuable to doctors, community nurses, and other health professionals, whether in training or in practice, as health officers and managers of health services and programmes
