

"We finished it exactly 11.30, as planned. The last notes of the 'Horn Ring' to be recorded were the last notes of 'Wotan'. In the control room we stood huddled, and although I do not remember it very clearly, I am sure that our thoughts went to the same direction, taking us back to an incident in that afternoon in September 1914 when the Rheingold I had just first recorded in the Nibelungen. It seemed like fifteen hours ago, the size of the Ring took, instead of seven years, but it was all there at last, for the pressure and tension generated to judge 'Die Erde' 'Horn Ring' as he came to, quoting from his Act Two monologue, 'Die Erde'."

I went into the empty hall. The orchestra had gone. Looking up to see the big open rings in the distant lights I could see our three Rheingolden strong here and there pointed by Nibelungen in the opening scene of Rheingold; Flapdud in a big person too, communicating with Wotan; the eighteen girls and the screaming children, brides and Woodpeckers leaping the second in Act One of Siegfried; and Father that in his little room at the back. I thought of Christa Ludwig as Wotan in the scene to Brunnhilde with such quiet intensity in Act One of Götterdämmerung... "So now it, age like Wotan..."; the moment of Freia's return in Act Two, and Freia's Black Hopes, and Father's death of Siegfried, so easily sung by Woodpeckers, and the enormous singing of Nibelungen in the Immolation scene. And I thought of Harnet, the incomparable Harnet, who had just a few moments ago sung 'Wenn Elberich sein die Frau, die from an die, die Quen' with such nobility and sorrow as words cannot describe.

I thought of Harnet, working himself to exhaustion, never losing his patience and yet never making an artistic compromise. I thought of my colleagues, and of all those in London and Zurich who had helped and supported us over the years, who had let us have our heads and pointed us the money and the conditions not just to make a recording of the Ring, but to do the job properly to the best of our abilities.

"Standing in the empty hall at the end of the last Wotan scene, with memories rushing all around us, we felt a strange mixture of sadness and pleasure. For better or worse, it was over. But now, even if it had been a major part of our lives, and it would not come our way again."
