empire thus lay not only in the labour they undertook but also in the way the servant master relationship constituted ground that helped other power relations to be imagined and contested Dussart explores the domestic service relationship in 19th century Britain and India considering how ideas about servants and their masters and or mistresses spanned imperial space and shaped peoples and places within it

texts and public debate to autobiography and fiction Hammerton examines the intense public scrutiny which accompanied the routine exposure of marital breakdown and charts a growing critique of men's behaviour in marriage which increasingly demanded regulation and reform The critical discourse which resulted ranging from paternalist to feminist casts new light on the origins and trajectory of nineteenth century feminism legal change and our understanding of the changing expression of masculinity
