

The Lymphatic System

Lymph and lymph vessels

Lymph is a clear, colorless fluid that circulates through the lymphatic system. It is composed of white blood cells, antibodies, and other substances that help fight infection and disease. Lymph vessels are thin-walled tubes that carry lymph throughout the body. They are found in all parts of the body, including the skin, muscles, and organs.

Lymph nodes

Lymph nodes are small, bean-shaped organs that are part of the lymphatic system. They are located throughout the body, often in clusters. Lymph nodes filter lymph and remove any foreign particles, such as bacteria or viruses, that may be present. They also produce and store lymphocytes, which are white blood cells that help fight infection.

Inflammatory and immune responses

The lymphatic system plays a key role in the body's inflammatory and immune responses. When an infection or injury occurs, the lymphatic system helps to remove the offending agent and deliver immune cells to the site of the problem. This process is known as inflammation. The immune response is the body's way of fighting off the infection and preventing it from spreading.

What is the lymphatic system?

The lymphatic system is a network of vessels and organs that help the body fight infection and disease. It is composed of lymph nodes, lymph vessels, and lymphoid organs. The lymphatic system is responsible for the production and circulation of lymphocytes, which are white blood cells that help fight infection.

Lymphoid intestinal tissue

Lymphoid intestinal tissue is a type of lymphoid tissue found in the lining of the small intestine. It is responsible for the production and circulation of lymphocytes, which are white blood cells that help fight infection.

Formation of lymphocytes

Lymphocytes are formed in the bone marrow from hematopoietic stem cells. They then migrate to the lymphatic system, where they mature and circulate. Lymphocytes are responsible for the body's immune response and help to fight off infection and disease.
