Zamani-Gallaher, Vernon C. Polite, 2013-07-01 African American Females Addressing Challenges and Nurturing the Future illustrates that across education health and other areas of social life opportunities are stratified along gender as well as race lines The unequal distribution of wealth power and privilege between men and women intersects with race and class to create multiple levels of disadvantage This book is one result of a unique forum intended to bring into focus the K 12 and postsecondary schooling issues and challenges affecting African American girls and women Focusing on the historical antecedents of African American female participation and the contemporary context of access and opportunity for black girls and women the contributors to this collection pay particular attention to the interaction of gender with race ethnicity class age and health with the central aim of encouraging thoughtful reading critical thinking and informed conversations about the necessity of exploring the lives of African American females Additionally the book frames important implications for recommended changes in policy and practice regarding a number of critical matters presently affecting African American females in schools and communities across the state of Michigan and nationwide Women of Color Navigating Mentoring Relationships Sonja M. Brown Givens, Keisha Edwards Tassie, 2016-07-18 Women of Color Navigating Mentoring Relationships explores and critically examines the opportunities and challenges presented in mentoring relationships involving women of color While all mentoring relationships are unique to the individuals involved in them this book highlights the roles of race class and gender oriented constructions in the establishment maintenance and dissolution of specific mentoring relationships in which women of color are engaged This edited collection argues that traditional notions of mentoring fail to account for intersectionality and power dynamics that can have profound effects on mentoring practices and that institutional best practices for mentoring do little to address the impact of constructions of otherness on the success or failure of mentoring relationships involving women of color Recommended for scholars of communication studies gender studies race studies and for scholars pursuing a career in academia A Faculty Guide to Advising and Supervising Graduate Students Darla J. Twale, 2015-01-30 This practical guide provides college and university faculty with resources for supervising and advising graduate assistants guiding doctoral students through the dissertation process and preparing the next generation of scholars Exploring common situations that faculty and their graduate students encounter this book provides the theoretical foundation and best practices for faculty to improve their advising and supervising practices Coverage Includes Working with part time online doctoral and masters students Supervising assistantships fellowships internships practicums and residencies Chairing dissertations and theses Preparing students for conferences and presentations From Diplomas to Doctorates V. Barbara Bush, Crystal Renee Chambers, Mary Beth Walpole, 2023-07-12 This volume is designed to illuminate the educational experiences of Black women from the time they earn their high school diplomas through graduate study with a particular focus on their doctoral studies by exploring the commonalities and the uniqueness of their individual paths and challenges The chapters of this volume newly identify key factors and experiences that shape Black women's engagement or disengagement with higher education. The original research presented here, using an array of theoretical lenses as well as qualitative and quantitative methods, not only deepens our understanding of the experiences of African American women in the academy but also seeks to strengthen the academic pipeline not only for the benefit of those who may have felt disenfranchised in the past but for all students. The contributors eschew the deficit-focused approach that implies a lack of social and cultural capital based on prior educational experiences adopted by many studies of non-dominant groups in education and instead focus on the strengths and experiences of their subjects. Among their findings is the identification of the social capital that Black women are given and actively acquire in their pre-collegiate years that enable them to gain greater returns on their educational investments than their male peers. The book further describes the assistance and the interference African American women receive from their peers during their transition to college and how peer interactions shape their early college experiences and influence subsequent persistence decisions. Whether studying how Black women in the social and natural sciences navigate through this often rocky terrain or uncovering the extent to which African American women doctoral students access postsecondary education through community colleges and their special needs for more mentoring and advising support, this book provides researchers and graduate students with rich information on how to successfully engage and succeed in the doctoral process. It also demonstrates to women faculty and administrators how they can become better navigators, guides, and advocates for the African American women who come after them.

Black Graduate Education at Historically Black Colleges and Universities Robert T. Palmer, Adriel A. Hilton, Tiffany Patrice Fountaine, 2012-08-01. This book provides context about the experiences of Black graduate and professional students attending HBCUs. Indeed, such research is important, particularly since HBCUs play a significant role in the number of Blacks who receive doctorates and professional degrees (i.e., M.D., D.S., J.D., etc.) especially in science and engineering. In fact, according to Redd and Minor (2008), the role of HBCUs in graduate education will become even more significant as more seek to offer graduate and professional programs, particularly at the doctoral level. This book focuses on the historical nature of graduate and professional education at HBCUs and the programs' contribution to society. Further, it provides context about the experiences of students who have attended these institutions for their post-baccalaureate pursuits. Finally, the book addresses the future of graduate and professional education at HBCUs and what fundamental aspects are needed to ensure their survival, competitiveness, and growth. This book appeals to faculty, departmental chairs, administrators, and students. Furthermore, higher education scholars who conduct or have an interest in pursuing empirical research on Black graduate and professional education or the efficacy and relevance of HBCUs will find this book useful given its unique and comprehensive approach focusing on supporting, retaining, and graduating Black graduate students at HBCUs. In addition, this book is an invaluable teaching resource for faculty in Higher Education Administration, Student Affairs, or Sociology programs.
