Malaria eradication World Health Organization,2020-04-19 In 2016 at the request of the WHO Director General a group of scientists and public health experts from around the world were brought together to advise WHO on future scenarios for malaria including whether eradication was feasible Over three years the members of the Strategic Advisory Group on Malaria Eradication SAGme analysed trends and reviewed future projections for the factors and determinants that underpin malaria Our analysis and discussions reaffirmed that eradication will result in millions of lives saved and a return on investment of billions of dollars We did not identify biological or environmental barriers to malaria eradication In addition our review of models accounting for a variety of global trends in the human and biophysical environment over the next three decades suggests that the world of the future will have much less malaria to contend with. However, even with our most optimistic scenarios and projections, we face an unavoidable fact: using current tools, we will still have 11 million cases of malaria in Africa in 2050. Under these circumstances, it is impossible to set a target date for malaria eradication, to formulate a reliable operational plan for malaria eradication, or to give it a price tag. Our current priority should be to establish the foundation for a successful future eradication effort. At the same time, we need to guard against the risk of failure, as such failure might lead to the waste of huge sums of money, frustrate all those involved, national governments and malaria experts alike, and cause a lack of confidence in the global health community's ability to rid the world of this disease. We need a renewed drive towards research and development (R D) on vector control, chemotherapy, and vaccines in order to develop the transformative tools and knowledge base necessary for achieving eradication in the highest burden areas. We need political leadership that makes effective and efficient use of increased domestic and international funding. We need bespoke national and subnational strategies guided by improved use of data and stronger delivery systems to provide the appropriate mix of services to all those in need without financial hardship. We need strengthened cross-border, regional, and international cooperation on malaria control and elimination efforts worldwide. When these critical foundations are laid, we believe that the world will be in a much stronger position to make the final and credible push for eradication. As we complete our work in 2019, we recognize that the world stands at a crossroads in the fight against malaria. Despite huge progress in reducing malaria cases and deaths between 2000 and 2015, in the last five years we have witnessed the stalling of global progress. The world is not on track to meet the 2020 milestones that will lead us to lower case incidence and mortality by 90% by 2030 from 2015 levels.<sup>5</sup> Without massive concerted and coordinated action, we are unlikely to meet these targets. While we are certain that eradication by a specific date is not a promise we can make to the world, just yet there is a clear agenda beginning with getting back on track to achieve the goals of the GTS that should immediately be pursued to make eradication possible.

An Introduction to Population Geographies Holly R. Barcus, Keith Halfacree, 2017-09-01. An Introduction to Population Geographies provides a foundation to the incredibly diverse, topical, and interesting field of twenty-first century population geography. It establishes the substantive concerns of the subdiscipline, acknowledges the sheer diversity of its approaches, key concepts, and theories, and engages with the resulting major areas of academic debate that stem from this richness. Written in an accessible style and assuming little prior knowledge of topics covered, yet drawing on a wide range of diverse academic literature, the book's particular originality comes from its extended definition of population geography that locates it firmly within the multiple geographies of the life course. Consequently, issues such as childhood and adulthood, family dynamics, ageing, everyday mobilities, morbidity, and differential ability assume a prominent place alongside the classic population geography triumvirate of births, migrations, and deaths. This broader framing of the field allows the book to address more holistically aspects of lives across space, often provided little attention in current textbooks Particular note is given to how these lives are shaped though hybrid social biological and individual arenas of differential life course experience By engaging with traditional quantitative perspectives and newer qualitative insights the authors engage students from the quantitative macro scale of population to the micro individual scale Aimed at higher level undergraduate and graduate students this introductory text provides a well developed pedagogy including case studies that illustrate theory concepts and issues

The Future, Declassified Mathew Burrows, 2025-06-25 Twenty five years ago when Mathew Burrows went to work for the CIA as an intelligence analyst the world seemed frozen Then came the fall of the Berlin Wall and the implosion of the Soviet Union suddenly unpredictability became a universal theme and foresight was critical For the past decade Burrows has overseen the creation of the Global Trends report the key futurist guide for the White House Departments of State and Defense and Homeland Security Global Trends has a history of making bold predictions and being right In 2004 it argued that al Qaeda s centralized operations would dissolve and be replaced by groups cells and individuals the very model of the 2012 Boston bombings In 2008 it included a scenario dubbed October Surprise imagining a devastating late season hurricane hitting an unprepared New York City In The Future Declassified Burrows for the first time has expanded the most recent Global Trends report into a full length narrative forecasting the tectonic shifts that will drive us to 2030 A staggering amount of wholesale change is happening from unprecedented and widespread aging to rampant urbanization and growth in a global middle class to an eastward shift in economic power and a growing number of disruptive technologies Even our physical geography is changing as sea levels rise and faster commercial shipping routes open up through a warming Arctic region The book concludes with its most provocative section four fictional paths to 2030 with imagined storylines and characters based on analysis by the most authoritative figures in the intelligence community As Burrows argues we are living through some of the greatest and most momentous developments in history Either we take charge and direct those or we are at their mercy The stakes are particularly high for America s standing in the world and for ordinary Americans who want to maintain their quality of life Running the gamut from scary to reassuring this riveting book is essential reading
