Routledge Companion to Global Heritage Conservation Vinayak Bharne, Trudi Sandmeier, 2019-02-12 The act of identifying protecting restoring and reusing buildings districts and built landscapes of historic and cultural significance is at its best a reflective and consequential process of urban and socio economic reform It has the potential to reconcile conflicting memories meanings and cultural tensions bridging and expanding the perceived boundaries of multiple disciplines towards bigger aspirations of city making and social justice How and where do such aspirations overlap and differ across nations and societies across the world In places with different histories governance structures regulatory stringency and populist dispositions who are the specific players and what are the actual processes that bring about bigger and deeper change beyond just the conservation of an architectural or urban entity of perceived value This collection of scholarly articles by theorists academics and practitioners explores the global complexity guises and potential of heritage conservation Going from Tokyo to Cairo Shenzhen to Rome and Delhi to Moscow this volume examines a vast range of topics indigenous habitats urban cores vernacular infrastructure colonial towns squatters burial sites war zones and modern landmarks It surfaces numerous inherent issues water stress deforestation social oppression poverty religion immigration and polity expanding the definitions of heritage conservation as both a professional discipline and socio cultural catalyst This book argues that the intellectual and praxis limits of heritage conservation as the agency of reading defining and intervening with built heritage can be expansive aimed at bigger positive change beyond a specific subject or object plural enmeshed with multiple fields and specializations and empathetic born from the actual socio political realities of a place Grounding Knowledge

Christopher J. Preston, 2003 He asks what these ideas in contemporary epistemology and environmental philosophy mean for environmental policy concluding that the grounding of knowledge strongly suggests epistemic reasons for the protection of a full range of physical environments in their natural condition BOOK JACKET The Cultural Landscape & Heritage

Paradox Tom Bloemers, Henk Kars, Arnold Van der Valk, 2010 The basic problem is to what extent we can know past and mainly invisible landscapes and how we can use this still hidden knowledge for actual sustainable management of landscape s cultural and historical values It has also been acknowledged that heritage management is increasingly about the management of future change rather than simply protection This presents us with a paradox to preserve our historic environment we have to collaborate with those who wish to transform it and in order to apply our expert knowledge we have to make it suitable for policy and society The answer presented by the Protection and Development of the Dutch Archaeological Historical Landscape programme pdl bbo is an integrative landscape approach which applies inter and transdisciplinarity establishing links between archaeological historical heritage and planning and between research and policy Landscape-scale Conservation Planning Stephen C. Trombulak, Robert Baldwin, 2010-09-21 Hugh P Possingham

Landscape scale conservation planning is coming of age In the last couple of decades conservation practitioners working at all levels of governance and all spatial scales have embraced the CARE principles of conservation planning Comprehensiveness Adequacy Representativeness and Efficiency Hundreds of papers have been written on this theme and several different kinds of software program have been developed and used around the world making conservation planning based on these principles global in its reach and influence Does this mean that all the science of conservation planning is over that the discovery phase has been replaced by an engineering phase as we move from defining the rules to implementing them in the landscape This book and the continuing growth in the literature suggest that the answer to this question is most definitely no All of applied conservation can be wrapped up into a single sentence what should be done the action in what place at what time using what mechanism and for what outcome the objective It all seems pretty simple what where when how and why However stating a problem does not mean it is easy to solve Conserving Cultural Landscapes Ken Taylor,Archer St. Clair,Nora J. Mitchell,2014-09-19 New approaches to both cultural landscapes and historic urban landscapes increasingly recognize the need to guide future change rather than simply protecting the fabric of the past Challenging traditional notions of historic preservation Conserving Cultural Landscapes takes a dynamic multifaceted approach to conservation It builds on the premise that a successful approach to urban and cultural landscape conservation recognizes cultural as well as natural values sustains traditional connections to place and engages people in stewardship where they live and work It brings together academics within the humanities and humanistic social sciences conservation and preservation professionals practitioners and stakeholders to rethink the meaning and practice of cultural heritage conservation encourage international cooperation and stimulate collaborative research and scholarship The Invention of the English Landscape Peter Borsay,Rosemary Sweet,2023-07-27 Since at least the Reformation English men and women have been engaged in visiting exploring and portraying in words and images the landscape of their nation The Invention of the English Landscape examines these journeys and investigations to explore how the natural and historic English landscape was reconfigured to become a widely enjoyed cultural and leisure resource Peter Borsay considers the manifold forces behind this transformation such as the rise of consumer culture the media industrial and transport revolutions the Enlightenment Romanticism and the Gothic revival In doing so he reveals the development of a powerful bond between landscape and natural identity against the backdrop of social and political change from the early modern period to the start of the Second World War Borsay s interdisciplinary approach demonstrates how human understandings of the natural world shaped the geography of England and uncovers a wealth of valuable material from novels and poems to paintings that expose historical understandings of the landscape This innovative approach illuminates how the English countryside and historic buildings became cultural icons behind which the nation was rallied during war time and explores the emergence of a post war heritage industry that is now a definitive part of British cultural life New Directions in Rural Preservation ,1980
