Reading Novels During the Covid-19 Pandemic Ben Davies, Christina Lupton, Johanne Gormsen Schmidt, 2022-10-20

Drawing on an ethnographic study of novel readers in Denmark and the UK during the Covid 19 pandemic this book provides a snapshot of a phenomenal moment in modern history The ethnographic approach shows what no historical account of books published during the pandemic will be able to capture namely the movement of readers between new purchases and books long kept in their collections The book follows readers who have tuned into novels about plague apocalypse and racial violence but also readers whose taste for older novels and for re reading novels they knew earlier in their lives has grown Alternating between chapters that analyse single texts that were popular Albert Camus's The Plague Ali Smith's Summer Charlotte Bronte's Jane Eyre and others that describe clusters of for example dystopian fiction and nature writing this work brings out the diverse quality of the Covid 19 bookshelf Time is of central importance to this study both in terms of the time of lockdown and the temporality of reading itself within this wider disrupted sense of time By exploring these varied experiences this book investigates the larger question of how the consumption of novels depends on and shapes people's experience of non work time providing a specific lens through which to examine the phenomenology of reading more generally This timely work also negotiates debates in the study of reading that distinguish theoretically between critical reading and reading for pleasure between professional and lay reading All sides of the sociological and literary debate must be brought to bear in understanding what readers tell us about what novels have meant to them in this complex historical moment

Why We Read Fiction Lisa Zunshine, 2006 Why We Read Fiction offers a lucid overview of the most exciting area of research in contemporary cognitive psychology known as Theory of Mind and discusses its implications for literary studies It covers a broad range of fictional narratives from Richardson's Clarissa Dostoyevski's Crime and Punishment and Austen's Pride and Prejudice to Woolf's Mrs Dalloway Nabokov's Lolita and Hammett's The Maltese Falcon Zunshine's surprising new interpretations of well known literary texts and popular cultural representations constantly prod her readers to rethink their own interest in fictional narrative Written for a general audience this study provides a jargon free introduction to the rapidly growing interdisciplinary field known as cognitive approaches to literature and culture

The Reading Lesson Patrick Brantlinger, 1998-12-22 Brantlinger's writing is admirably lucid his knowledge impressive and his thesis a welcome reminder of the class bias that so often accompanies denunciations of popular fiction Publishers Weekly Brantlinger is adept at discussing both the fiction itself and the social environment in which that fiction was produced and disseminated He brings to his study a thorough knowledge of traditional and contemporary scholarship which results in an important scholarly book on Victorian fiction and its production Choice Timely scrupulously researched thoroughly enlightening and steadily readable A work of agenda setting historical scholarship Garrett Stewart Fear of mass literacy stalks the pages of Patrick Brantlinger's latest book Its central plot involves the many ways in which novels and novel reading were viewed especially by novelists themselves as both causes and symptoms of rotting minds and moral decay among nineteenth century readers 100

Johnson, 2021-01-15 Zaynab first published in 1913 is widely cited as the first Arabic novel yet the previous eight decades saw hundreds of novels translated into Arabic from English and French This vast literary corpus influenced generations of Arab writers but has until now been considered a curious footnote in the genre's history Incorporating these works into the history of the Arabic novel Stranger Fictions offers a transformative new account of modern Arabic literature world literature and the novel Rebecca C Johnson rewrites the history of the global circulation of the novel by moving Arabic literature from the margins of comparative literature to its center Considering the wide range of nineteenth and early twentieth century translation practices including bad translation mistranslation and pseudotranslation Johnson argues that Arabic translators did far more than copy European works they authored new versions of them producing sophisticated theorizations of the genre These translations and the reading practices they precipitated form the conceptual and practical foundations of Arab literary modernity necessitating an overhaul of our notions of translation cultural exchange and the global Examining nearly a century of translations published in Beirut Cairo Malta Paris London and New York from Qat R binun Kur z The story of Robinson Crusoe in 1835 to pastiche crime stories in early twentieth century Egyptian magazines Johnson shows how translators theorized the Arab world not as Europe's periphery but as an alternative center in a globalized network Stranger Fictions affirms the central place of mis translation in both the history of the novel in Arabic and the novel as a transnational form itself

The Book's Road in the Age of Digitization Janina Krieger, 2023-01-28 Although every area of life is permeated by digital processes the majority of Germans seem to resist digital alternatives with regard to the activity of reading The printed book continues to enjoy much greater popularity than the eBook This seems surprising since the entire communication behavior has moved to digital devices So what lies behind this Why are there still printed books in digital times Previous studies of the printed book have focused primarily on its media future as this seemed threatened by digitization In this work Janina Krieger instead examines the past from three perspectives in order to gain insights into the present While other studies always chose one method and these mostly belonged to the quantitative approach here three subjects are identified which are examined with different methods and in their combination can provide an answer to the research question the consumers of literature the readers literature itself the selected genre is the novel and the media theories of the 20th century which have already dealt with media change
