Pillars of Early Literacy

The National Reading Panel identified five key concepts at the core of every effective reading instruction program: Phonemic Awareness, Phonics, Fluency, Vocabulary, and Comprehension. Since the panel's report was released in 2000, these concepts have become known as the "five pillars" of early literacy and reading instruction.

Sugar and Spice Jon Stobart,2016-12-01 Consumers in eighteenth century England were firmly embedded in an expanding world of goods one that incorporated a range of novel foods tobacco chocolate coffee and tea and new supplies of more established commodities including sugar spices and dried fruits Much has been written about the attraction of these goods which went from being novelties or expensive luxuries in the mid seventeenth century to central elements of the British diet a century or so later They have been linked to the rise of Britain as a commercial and imperial power whilst their consumption is seen as transforming many aspects of British society and culture from mealtimes to gender identity Despite this huge significance to ideas of consumer change we know remarkably little about the everyday processes through which groceries were sold bought and consumed In tracing the lines of supply that carried groceries from merchants to consumers Sugar and Spice reveals how changes in retailing and shopping were central to the broader transformation of consumption and consumer practices but also questions established ideas about the motivations underpinning consumer choices It demonstrates the dynamic nature of eighteenth century retailing the importance of advertisements in promoting sales and shaping consumer perceptions and the role of groceries in making shopping an everyday activity At the same time it shows how both retailers and their customers were influenced by the practicalities and pleasures of consumption They were active agents in consumer change shaping their own practices rather than caught up in a single socially inclusive cultural project such as politeness or respectability

The Power of Peer Feedback Jos J.M. Baeten, PhD, 2016-09-20 Does the use of the Internet in any way contribute to a student's learning process and if yes precisely what added value does this represent This question and more specifically the attempt to answer it is what lies at the heart of this dissertation which considers the issue from a number of perspectives based on experiences opinions and academic theories This is done through the analysis of a new and innovative educational concept Virtual Action Learning Virtual Action Learning VAL is an educational concept that was designed to connect with the personal learning environments of people who live in a world where technology and social media play a dominant role In other words a world in which information is processed in an interactive and visual manner within the context of ever changing situations and processes that demand ever higher levels of individual responsibility The application of VAL concerns a way of learning that is different from what is common VAL is based on social constructivist learning theory in combination with an intensive use of ICT in the student s learning process This takes place in the Virtual Learning Community VLC an electronic learning environment developed to support the learning process In addition to the educational characteristics of the VAL concept a managerial perspective can be distinguished that involves the way in which schools and universities organise their processes in order to facilitate learning This process approach born in the nineteen nineties is grounded in a number of business theories The VAL concept distinguishes three primary processes the learning process for which the student carries responsibility and the processes related to teaching and assessment for which the instructor is held responsible With the help of design principles that are firmly based on theory we first describe the way in which the learning process evolves The ensuing assessment process is closely linked with the educational process but is first and foremost geared towards the learning process of individual students By connecting the above mentioned process activities via a Feedback and Reflection Cycle it becomes possible to establish a strong connection between a course s contents and its related competences To achieve this we need to ensure that throughout the course participants are continuously engaged in a Meaningful Dialogue interaction and the mutual exchange of constructive feedback not only among students themselves but also among students and their teachers This is partly done in the VLC and partly during meetings held at school a process for which new virtual educational forms have been designed and which focuses on the power of feedback provided and received by students on their specific learning products in the VLC Within the VAL concept the Meaningful Dialogue is considered to be the measure of good quality education that is supported by ICT

Introduction to Sounds and Words Molly Rodgers,2024-12-31 Using pictures to identify letters and their associated sounds Learning to read is one of life s most important skills and thus a crucial goal of the school curriculum Of the many strategies and tactics that help children become efficient readers no programs have proved more effective than those that include phonics Phonics helps students become independent readers by teaching them to sound out the new words they encounter Just knowing the name of each letter of the alphabet is not enough to attain this skill it is not enough to help them play the word in their heads It is important to know that vowels have long and short sounds that there are different ways of spelling a specific sound and that sometimes two consonants together create a whole new sound while in other combinations each consonant is sounded out separately The Phonics Practice Simplified program will help students develop and master these and other sound symbol relationships that are important building blocks for reading success
