Empathy and the Novel Suzanne Keen, 2007-04-19 Does empathy felt while reading fiction actually cultivate a sense of connection leading to altruistic actions on behalf of real others Empathy and the Novel presents a comprehensive account of the relationships among novel reading empathy and altruism Drawing on psychology narrative theory neuroscience literary history philosophy and recent scholarship in discourse processing Keen brings together resources and challenges for the literary study of empathy and the psychological study of fiction reading Empathy robustly enters into affective responses to fiction yet its role in shaping the behavior of emotional readers has been debated for three centuries Keen surveys these debates and illustrates the techniques that invite empathetic response She argues that the perception of fictiveness increases the likelihood of readers empathy in part by releasing them from the guarded responses necessitated by the demands of real others Narrative empathy is a strategy and subject of contemporary novelists from around the world writers who tacitly endorse the potential universality of human emotions when they call upon their readers empathy If narrative empathy is to be taken seriously Keen suggests then women s reading and responses to popular fiction occupy a central position in literary inquiry and cognitive literary studies should extend its range beyond canonical novels In short Keen s study extends the playing field for literature practitioners causing it to resemble more closely that wide open landscape inhabited by readers Women's Fiction 1945-2005 Deborah Philips,2006-01-01 The paperback edition of major survey of popular women s fiction by wide range of North American and British writers

Reading Communities from Salons to Cyberspace DeNel Rehberg Sedo,2011-08-25 Reading is both a social process and a social formation as this book illustrates across centuries and cultural contexts Highlighting links evident in reading communities from literary salons to online environments each essay reflects the rich repertoire of research methods available to reading scholars Consuming Books Stephen Brown,2006-04-18 The buying selling and writing of books is a colossal industry in which marketing looms large yet there are very few books which deal with book marketing how to texts excepted and fewer still on book consumption This innovative text not only rectifies this but also argues that far from being detached the book business in fact epitomises today s Entertainment Economy fast moving hit driven intense competition rapid technological change etc Written by an impressive roster of renowned marketing authorities many with experience of the book trade and all gifted writers in their own right Consuming Books steps back from the practicalities of book marketing and takes a look at the industry from a broader consumer research perspective Consisting of sixteen chapters divided into four loose sections this key text covers a historical overview the often acrimonious marketing literature interface the consumers of books from book groups to bookcrossing a consideration of the tensions that both literary types and marketers feel With something for everyone Consuming Books not only complements the how to genre but provides the depth that previous studies of book consumption conspicuously lack Introduction to Public Librarianship Kathleen de la Peña McCook,Jenny S. Bossaller,2017-12-04 Put simply there is no text about public librarianship more rigorous or comprehensive than McCook s survey Now the REFORMA Lifetime Achievement Award winning author has teamed up with noted public library scholar and advocate Bossaller to update and expand her work to incorporate the field s renewed emphasis on outcomes and transformation This essential tool Library Journal remains the definitive handbook on this branch of the Inclusion Eileen Hyder, 2016-04-01 Reading groups have grown rapidly in popularity and continue to be a significant cultural phenomenon. Reading groups in public libraries linked to the learning and social inclusion agenda have expanded to include a wide range of groups within society including people with visual impairments (VIPs). This under-researched area is the focus of this book. Library-based VIP reading groups are interesting on many levels. Given that these groups predominantly use audio versions of the text rather than print, this links to debates about the changing nature of reading in a multi-modal age. This book discusses whether contemporary society still defines reading as a visual activity or whether technological developments have led to a broadening of the definition of reading. The author goes on to discuss how policy is translated into practice within the library context and whether the wide range of reading groups linked to libraries suggests that libraries understand and are taking the social inclusion agenda seriously. She also explores how effectively libraries are using reading groups as a tool for delivering on the agenda for learning and how this sits within wider priorities for post-compulsory education and lifelong learning. Finally, the book suggests ideas for future development for these groups, outlining ways in which their potential could be maximised for the benefit of both the library and the reading group members. The book will be of great interest to professional librarians as well as students and scholars of librarianship. It will also be of interest to those working on the emerging field of reading groups in literary studies. Those interested in the role of reading in education as well as disability scholars will also find the book useful.
