Much has been said about the general subject of how to measure a corporation's social performance but little has been contributed to answering this fundamental question. Thus in November 1971 Russell Sage Foundation sponsored a development effort aimed at examining the state of the art and at suggesting a program of research that would advance that state. Raymond Bauer and Dan Fenn have provided us with a first product: a state of the art conception and description and recommendations for future development. They are to be commended for their astute considerations and their clear thinking in the murky pond of corporate social audits. Their effort has provided the social science community with a point of departure for future research in the area.
