

- Primary attachment figures provide the main foundation for emotional development & self esteem.
- Secondary attachment figures act as a safety net & contribute to social development. Children brought up with no secondary attachments tend to lack social skills.
- Internal Working Model – This is what we expect from all other relationships based on our first attachment. E.g. Whether it is normal for others to make us feel good or anxious & so on.
- The Continuity Hypothesis - Securely attached infants CONTINUE to be socially & emotionally competent adults. Insecurely attached infants have more social & emotional difficulties throughout life.
