Understanding and Managing Risk in Security Systems for the DOE Nuclear Weapons Complex National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Nuclear and Radiation Studies Board, Committee on Risk-Based Approaches for Securing the DOE Nuclear Weapons Complex, 2011-05-07 A nuclear weapon or a significant quantity of special nuclear material SNM would be of great value to a terrorist or other adversary It might have particular value if acquired from a U S facility in addition to acquiring a highly destructive tool the adversary would demonstrate an inability of the United States to protect its nuclear assets The United States expends considerable resources toward maintaining effective security at facilities that house its nuclear assets However particularly in a budget constrained environment it is essential that these assets are also secured efficiently meaning at reasonable cost and imposing minimal burdens on the primary missions of the organizations that operate U S nuclear facilities It is in this context that the U S Congress directed the National Nuclear Security Administration NNSA a semi autonomous agency in the U S Department of Energy DOE responsible for securing nuclear weapons and significant quantities of SNM asked the National Academies for advice on augmenting its security approach particularly on the applicability of quantitative and other risk based approaches for securing its facilities In carrying out its charge the committee has focused on what actions NNSA could take to make its security approach more effective and efficient The committee concluded that the solution to balancing cost security and operations at facilities in the nuclear weapons complex is not to assess security risks more quantitatively or more precisely This is primarily because there is no comprehensive analytical basis for defining the attack strategies that a malicious creative and deliberate adversary might employ or the probabilities associated with them However using structured thinking processes and techniques to characterize security risk could improve NNSA s understanding of security vulnerabilities and guide more effective resource allocation
