

The background of the slide features a photograph of a child's artwork. On the left, a white sheet of paper is propped up, showing a purple ink drawing of a person's head and shoulders. To the right of the paper, a tree trunk with rough, textured bark is visible. In the background, a grassy field and some blurred figures of people can be seen under bright, natural light. A black rectangular box is overlaid on the lower half of the image, containing white text.

At popups, we see incredible play unfold—but we also hear a lot of play policing. It's usually well-meaning, intended to keep kids safe or help them navigate social situations. But the words we use can unintentionally send messages that shut play down rather than support it.
