Participatory Plant Breeding: Concept and Applications Atul Bhargava, Shilpi Srivastava, 2019-04-13 Plant breeding has played a significant role in the development of human civilizations Conventional plant breeding has significantly improved crop yield by genetically manipulating agronomically important traits However it has often been criticized for ignoring indigenous germplasm failing to address the needs of the marginal and the poor farmers and emphasizing selection for broad instead of local adaptation Participatory plant breeding PPB is the process by which the producers and other stakeholders are actively involved in a plant breeding programme with opportunities to make decisions throughout The Working Group on Participatory Plant Breeding PPBwg was established in 1996 under the framework of the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research CGIAR Research in PPB can promote informed participation and trust in research among consumers and producers and in recent years PPB has had a significant impact on food production by quickly and cost effectively producing improved crop varieties At the same time there has been significant research in the area PPB offers significant advantages that are particularly relevant to developing countries where large investments in plant breeding have not led to increased production especially in the marginal environments In addition to the economic benefits participatory research has a number of psychological moral and ethical benefits which are the consequence of a progressive empowerment of the farming communities PPB can empower groups such as women or less well off farmers that are traditionally left out of the development process This book explores the potential of PPB in the coming decades The topic is more relevant since international breeding efforts for major crops are aimed at decentralizing local breeding methods to better incorporate the perspective of end users into the varietal development process The first book incorporating the upcoming research on this novel breeding approach it reviews the important tools and applications of PPB in an easy to read succinct format with illustrations to clarify these complex topics It provides readers with a basic idea of participatory plant breeding as well as advances in the field and insights into the future to facilitate the successful integration of farmers into breeding programmes This book is a valuable reference resource for agriculturists agricultural advisers policy makers NGOs post doctoral students and scientists in agriculture horticulture forestry and botany Seed Policy and Programmes in the Near East and North

More than a resource - the social significance of local seed systems and seed exchange in the Global South Jonas Metzger, 2023-05-31. Seeds are at the heart of a transformation process that affects more than two billion people worldwide. This study on smallholder farmers in Tanzania examines how local seed systems are anchored in the socio-cultural structures of smallholder life worlds. Using the example of seeds, the close interweaving of agricultural and social practice is traced, and it is worked out how individual processes of modernisation brought in from outside have far-reaching consequences for smallholder coexistence. The study provides a concrete, detailed, and differentiated account of everyday farming life and of how smallholder households deal with seeds. A particular focus is on seed exchange relationships and how these provide both social security and social cohesion in the study region. The study is based on extensive field research and intensive interviews with farmers who also have their own say in the work.

Quality Declared Seed System Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2006-01-01. The quality declared seed system as set out in the FAO Plant Production and Production Paper No 117 1993 ISBN 9251032785 has been widely used, particularly by those working in the field of emergency seed supply and as a source of practical information on seed standards for a range of crop species. The system provided an alternative for seed quality assurance which was less demanding than full seed quality control systems. This publication sets out a revised version prepared by an expert consultation which offers a more explicit recognition of the role of national policies and the impact of some recent international obligations on seed provision and a clearer explanation on how quality declared seeds can accommodate local varieties. The list of crops now includes 92 species of which 21 include open-pollinated and hybrids and one includes also a synthetic variety. In making this update, FAO sought to improve seed supplies to farmers and thus to contribute to food security.

In line with the Rome Declaration on World Food Security and the World Food Summit Plan of Action, the meeting recognised that a key challenge facing most central and Eastern European countries is the need to invest significant resources to increase the availability of good quality seed of a wider range of plant varieties. Seed Policy and Programmes for Sub-Saharan Africa Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1999-01-01 One of the major challenges facing most countries in sub-Saharan Africa is the need to invest significant resources into strengthening their capacity to increase the availability of good quality seeds of a wider range of plant varieties.
