Because I Don't Have Wings Philip Garrison, 2022-10-04 For Mexican workers the agricultural valleys of the inland Northwest are a long way from home But there they have established communities settlements recent enough that it feels like these newly arrived immigrant mexicanos are pioneers still getting used to the Anglos and to each other This book looks at the inner lives of Mexican immigrants in a northwestern U.S. boomtown a loose collection of families from Michoacán and surrounding states living a mere 150 miles from Canada They are more isolated than most mexicano communities closer to home and they endure severe winters that make life more difficult still Neighborhoods form dissolve and reform Family members who leave may stay in touch but friends very often simply vanish leaving only their nicknames behind Without a market or a plaza residents meet at weddings christenings and funerals or at the food bank Philip Garrison has spent most of his life in this region and shares in vivid prose tales of immigrant life both contemporary and historical revealing the dual lives of first generation Mexican immigrants who move smoothly between the Yakima Valley and their homes in Mexico And with a scholar s eye he examines figures of speech that reflect mexicano feelings about immigrant life offering glimpses of adaptation through offhand remarks family spats and town gossip Written with irony but bursting with compassion Because I Don t Have Wings features vivid characters telling anecdotes and poignant reflections on life unfolding an immigrant s world strikingly different from the one we usually read about Adaptation persistence and survival we learn are traits that mexicano culture values We also learn that over time mexicano immigrants don t merely adapt to the culture of el norte they transform it

Elqayam, David E. Over, 2016-08-12 In the study of human thinking two main research questions can be asked Descriptive Q What is human thinking like Normative Q What ought human thinking be like For decades these two questions have dominated the field and the relationship between them generated many a controversy Empirical normativist approaches regard the answers to these questions as positively correlated in essence human thinking is what it ought to be although what counts as the ought standard is moot In contemporary theories of reasoning and decision making this is often associated with a Panglossian framework an adaptationist approach which regards human thinking as a priori rational In contrast prescriptive normativism sees the answers to these two questions as negatively correlated Normative models are still relevant to human thought but human behaviour deviates from them quite markedly with the invited conclusion that humans are often irrational Prescriptive normativism often results in a Meliorist agenda which sees rationality as amenable to education Both empirical and prescriptive normativism can be contrasted with a descriptivist framework for psychology of human thinking Following Hume's strict divide between the is and the ought descriptivism regards the descriptive and normative research questions as uncorrelated or dissociated with only the former question suitable for psychological study of human behaviour This basic division carries over to the relation between normative ought rationality based on conforming to normative standards and instrumental rationality based on achieving one's goals Descriptivist approaches regard the two as dissociated whereas normativist approaches tend to see them as closely linked with normative arguments defining and justifying instrumental rationality This research topic brings together diverse contributions to the continuing debate Featuring contributions from leading researchers in the field the e book covers a wide range of subjects arranged by six sections The standard picture Normativist perspectives In defence of soft normativism Exploring normative models Descriptivist perspectives Evolutionary and ecological accounts Empirical reports With a total of some 24 articles from 55 authors this comprehensive treatment includes theoretical analyses meta theoretical critiques commentaries and a range of empirical reports The contents of the Research Topic should appeal to psychologists linguists philosophers and cognitive scientists with research interests in a wide range of domains from language through reasoning judgment and decision making and moral judgment to epistemology and theory of mind philosophical logic and meta ethics
