

"The purpose of this book is to allow the reader to listen to some authentic voices of the new generation, talking about their own lives, how they experience things. All too often the counterculture is merely a 'trip.' The writers here are talking about a transformation in ordinary living that is more permanent. Sometimes the activity is the same as before, but the feeling or understanding is different. Such changes escape the superficial eye of the media. But it is just these changes that really matter, that really are transforming our society."
