INTRODUCTION BY RICHARD SCHICKEL

Irving Singer

Magic Myth Movie:

Magic and Myth of the Movies Parker Tyler, 1985 Magical Suspension James Combs, 2015-09-04 This book builds upon the author's extensive previous work on the movies adopting a more comprehensive and inquisitive stance for the study of moving pictures as a cultural movement and ludenic innovation. It returns to earlier analysis and commentary on this new invention and recreation quickly termed the movies and develops the initial impression of both moviegoers and observers that the movies appealed because they were fun. As such, the book examines the characteristics that made films so enjoyable, namely their use of magic, presentation of myth, and persistence of mnemonic recollection. The enduring appeal of moving pictures remains consistent even though the medium has proliferated and diversified so much so that now a good portion of the human race spends a great deal of time looking at moving pictures. The book is eclectic and exploratory, designed to urge consideration of moving pictures in this larger perspective as something that has changed and perhaps enriched the lives of many people, leaving inquirers the task of calculating the enormous significance and consequences of our motion picture experience for the conduct of our lives. Such an effort is not without merit since it now seems quite clear that the whole world is watching.

Movie-Made America Robert Sklar, 2012-10-31 Hailed as the definitive work upon its original publication in 1975 and now extensively revised and updated by the author, this vastly absorbing and richly illustrated book examines film as an art form, technological innovation, big business, and shaper of American values. Ever since Edison's peep shows first captivated urban audiences, film has had a revolutionary impact on American society, transforming culture from the bottom up, radically revising attitudes toward pleasure and sexuality and at the same time cementing the myth of the American dream. No book has measured film's impact more clearly or comprehensively than Movie Made America. This vastly readable and richly illustrated volume examines film as art form, technological innovation, big business, and cultural bellwether. It takes in stars from Douglas Fairbanks to Sly Stallone, auteurs from D. W. Griffith to Martin Scorsese and Spike Lee, and genres from the screwball comedy of the 1930s to the hard body movies of the 1980s to the independents films of the 1990s. Combining panoramic sweep with detailed commentaries on hundreds of individual films, Movie Made America is a must for any motion picture enthusiast.

Fake Movie Myths Ethan Parker, 2025-03-29 Fake Movie Myths tackles the pervasive misinformation surrounding cinema, separating fact from fiction in film history and popular culture. It explores how certain movie facts, like the ubiquity of the Wilhelm Scream, gain traction and become accepted truths despite lacking evidence. The book delves into why these film myths are so easily believed, examining the psychological factors and social forces that shape our perception of movies and Hollywood. Each chapter of Fake Movie Myths dissects specific categories of these myths, such as on-set incidents or casting controversies, providing factual evidence and expert opinions to reveal the truth. It highlights the importance of critically examining the stories we tell ourselves about film history to gain a deeper understanding of the art form. By debunking these false narratives, the book aims to restore accuracy and promote a more nuanced appreciation of cinematic achievements The book progresses by first introducing core concepts of film myth making then dedicating individual chapters to specific myths The book concludes with a discussion of the broader implications of film myths including their role in shaping popular culture This unique approach combines rigorous research with accessible storytelling offering critical viewing strategies to help readers discern fact from fiction in their own film experiences

The Monomyth in American Science Fiction Films Donald E. Palumbo, 2014-11-05 One of the great intellectual achievements of the 20th century Joseph Campbell's The Hero with a Thousand Faces is an elaborate articulation of the monomyth the narrative pattern underlying countless stories from the most ancient myths and legends to the films and television series of today The monomyth's fundamental storyline in Campbell's words sees the hero venture forth from the world of the common day into a region of supernatural wonder fabulous forces are there encountered and a decisive victory is won the hero comes back from this mysterious adventure with the power to bestow boons to his fellow man Campbell asserted that the hero is each of us thus the monomyth's endurance as a compelling plot structure This study examines the monomyth in the context of Campbell's The Hero and discusses the use of this versatile narrative in 26 films and two television shows produced between 1960 and 2009 including the initial Star Wars trilogy 1977 1983 The Time Machine 1960 Logan's Run 1976 Escape from New York 1981 Tron 1982 The Terminator 1984 The Matrix 1999 the first 11 Star Trek films 1979 2009 and the Sci Fi Channel's miniseries Frank Herbert's Dune 2000 and Frank Herbert's Children of Dune 2003

The Power of Movies Colin McGinn, 2007-02-13 How is watching a movie similar to dreaming What goes on in our minds when we become absorbed in a movie How does looking into a movie screen allow us to experience the thoughts and feelings of a movie's characters These and related questions are at the heart of The Power of Movies a thoughtful invigorating and remarkably accessible book about a phenomenon seemingly beyond reach of our understanding Colin McGinn an ingenious philosopher who thinks like a laser and writes like a dream according to Steven Pinker enhances our understanding of both movies and ourselves in this book of rare and refreshing insight

Crime Films Thomas Leitch, 2002-08-15 This book surveys the entire range of crime films including important subgenres such as the gangster film the private eye film film noir as well as the victim film the erotic thriller and the crime comedy Focusing on ten films that span the range of the twentieth century Thomas Leitch traces the transformation of the three leading figures that are common to all crime films the criminal the victim and the avenger Analyzing how each of the subgenres establishes oppositions among its ritual antagonists he shows how the distinctions among them become blurred throughout the course of the century This blurring Leitch maintains reflects and fosters a deep social ambivalence towards crime and criminals while the criminal victim and avenger characters effectively map the shifting relations between subgenres such as the erotic thriller and the police film within the larger genre of crime film that informs them all

Classical Hollywood, American Modernism Jordan Brower, 2024-01-18 This book charts the Hollywood studio system's genesis, international dominance and self-understood demise by way of its influences on modernist literature in the United States. It shows how the American film industry's business practices and social conditions inflected the form of some of the greatest works of prose fiction and non-fiction.

Ingmar Bergman, Cinematic Philosopher Irving Singer, 2009-09-18 The development of themes, motifs and techniques in Bergman's films from the first intimations in the early work to the consummate resolutions in the final movies. Known for their repeating motifs and signature tropes, the films of Ingmar Bergman also contain extensive variation and development. In these reflections on Bergman's artistry and thought, Irving Singer discerns distinctive themes in Bergman's filmmaking from first intimations in the early work to consummate resolutions in the later movies. Singer demonstrates that while Bergman's output is not philosophy on celluloid, it attains an expressive and purely aesthetic truthfulness that can be considered philosophical in a broader sense. Through analysis of both narrative and filmic effects, Singer probes Bergman's mythmaking and his reliance upon the magic inherent in his cinematic techniques. Singer traces throughout the evolution of Bergman's ideas about life and death and about the possibility of happiness and interpersonal love. In the overtly self-referential films that he wrote or directed, The Best Intentions, Fanny and Alexander, Sunday's Children, as well as the less obviously autobiographical ones including Wild Strawberries, The Seventh Seal, and the triad that begins with Through a Glass Darkly, Bergman investigates problems in his existence and frequently reverts to childhood memories. In such movies as Smiles of a Summer Night, Scenes from a Marriage, and Saraband, Bergman draws upon his mature experience and depicts the troubled relationships between men who are often weak and women who are made to suffer by the damaged men with whom they live. In Persona, Cries and Whispers, and other works, his experiments with the camera are uniquely masterful. Inspecting the panorama of Bergman's art, Singer shows how the endless search for human contact motivates the content of his films and reflects Bergman's profound perspective on the world.
