The Late Middle English Version of Constantinus Africanus' Venerabilis Anatomia in London, Wellcome Library, MS 290 (ff. 1r-41v) Jesús

Romero-Barranco, 2015-10-28. Constantinus Africanus (c. 1015–1087), likely born in modern Tunisia or Sicily, was responsible for the translation of Arabic medical texts into Latin, which constituted a substantial contribution to contemporary knowledge in fields such as anatomy and surgery among others. Consequently, he was an extremely influential and much-cited author, and his contributions were translated into other vernacular languages, including Middle English during the Middle Ages, which led to the proliferation of different translations of the same treatise. This book is a semi-diplomatic edition of the late Middle English version of Constantinus Africanus' Venerabilis Anatomia, which is housed in the Wellcome Library in London (MS Wellcome 290, ff. 1r–41v). This version is accompanied by an introduction, a physical description of the volume, a linguistic analysis of the text, and a glossary. As such, this book represents a primary source for research not only in historical linguistics but also in other related fields, including the history of medicine.

Symptomatic Subjects Julie Orlemanski, 2019-05-17. In the period just prior to medicine's modernity, before the rise of Renaissance anatomy, the centralized regulation of medical practice, and the valorization of scientific empiricism, England was the scene of a remarkable upsurge in medical writing. Between the arrival of the Black Death in 1348 and the emergence of printed English books a century and a quarter later, thousands of discrete medical texts were copied, translated, and composed largely for readers outside universities. These widely varied texts shared a model of a universe crisscrossed with physical forces and a picture of the human body as a changeable composite thing tuned materially to the world's vicissitudes. According to Julie Orlemanski, when writers like Geoffrey Chaucer, Robert Henryson, Thomas Hoccleve, and Margery Kempe drew on the discourse of phisik, the language of humors and complexions, leprous pustules, and love sickness, regimen, and pharmacopeia, they did so to chart new circuits of legibility between physiology and personhood. Orlemanski explores the texts of her vernacular writers to show how they deployed the rich terminology of embodiment and its ailments to portray symptomatic figures who struggled to control both their bodies and the interpretations that gave their bodies meaning As medical paradigms mingled with penitential miraculous and socially symbolic systems these texts demanded that a growing number of readers negotiate the conflicting claims of material causation intentional action and divine power Examining both the medical writings of late medieval England and the narrative and poetic works that responded to them Symptomatic Subjects illuminates the period's conflicts over who had the authority to construe bodily signs and what embodiment could be made to mean     Historical Pragmatics Andreas H. Jucker, Irma Taavitsainen, 2010-09-22 The Handbook of Historical Pragmatics provides an authoritative and accessible overview of this versatile new field in pragmatics devoted to a diachronic study of language use and human interaction in context It covers all areas of historical pragmatics from grammaticalization theory to pragmatic entities such as discourse markers speech acts and politeness to individual discourse domains from scientific writing to literary discourse Each contribution written by a leading specialist gives a succinct representative and up to date overview of research questions theories methods and recent developments in the field     "All families and genera" Isabel Moskowich, Inés Lareo, Gonzalo Camiña, 2021-09-10 All families and genera Exploring the Corpus of English Life Sciences Texts aims at exploring scientific writing in late Modern English This volume is the fourth of its kind devoted to the analysis of the relations between language and different scientific disciplines from 1700 to 1900 Here forty texts on biology and related fields as compiled in the Corpus of English Life Sciences Texts CELiST constitute the basis for the fifteen studies describing scientific discourse on methodological issues the period and the status of the discipline itself as well as pilot studies CELiST is accompanied by an updated version of the Coru a Corpus Tool CCT a purpose designed software Both the tool and the corpus are freely accessible at the Repositorio Universidade Coru a CCT at <http://hdl.handle.net/2183/21850> and CELiST at <https://ruc.udc.es/dspace/handle/2183/25720> DOI <https://doi.org/10.17979/spudc.9788497497848> The book is addressed to an international readership It is of interest for university libraries as well as other academic institutions societies and individual scholars specialised in corpus linguistics and historical linguistics all over the world     Language Mixing and Code-Switching in Writing Mark Sebba, Shahrzad Mahootian, Carla Jonsson, 2012-05-22 Code switching or the alternation of languages by bilinguals has attracted an enormous amount of attention from researchers However most research has focused on spoken language and the resultant theoretical frameworks have been based on spoken code switching This volume presents a collection of new work on the alternation of languages in written form Written language alternation has existed since ancient times It is present today in a great deal of traditional media and also exists in newer less regulated forms such as email SMS messages and blogs Chapters in this volume cover both historical and contemporary language mixing practices in a large range of language pairs and multilingual communities The research collected here explores diverse approaches including corpus linguistics Critical Discourse Analysis literacy studies ethnography and analyses of the visual textual aspects of written data Each chapter based on empirical research of multilingual writing presents methodological approaches as models for other researchers New perspectives developed in this book include analysis specific to written rather than spoken discourse approaches from the new literacy studies treating mixed language literacy from a practice perspective a focus on both traditional and new media types and the semiotics of both text and the visual environment
