High Density Living as a Reliable Solution to Urban Sprawl. The Case of Sydney, Australia Patrick Kimuyu, 2018-04-30 Academic Paper from the year 2017 in the subject Health Public Health grade 2 Egerton University language English abstract High density living is defined as 30 or more dwelling per hectare and embraces units flats terraces townhouses and villas Additionally high density living also refers to apartment units in residential blocks of four or more storey Majority of high density units do not have their own playing ground and share common facilities such as entrance foyers and stairwells Urban High density living has been considered as one of the core strategies in managing urban growth In Australia high density is considered as a vital strategy in managing the urban growth and reducing the negative impact of urban sprawl In recent times cities such as Sydney Perth Melbourne and Brisbane have been epitomized by growth in the construction of high rise apartments Many young people prefer these kinds of dwelling since they offer advantages of location with proximity to education jobs and other services Various researchers points out that high density living has positive impacts such as efficient usage of land enhanced social interaction and reduced reliance on automobiles However this form of living has also drawn criticism due to noise overcrowding and limited space The draft Metropolitan Strategy for Sydney 2031 points out that the populations will reach 1 1 million by the years 2031 hence more houses will be required Therefore this discussion paper provides a focused analysis of Sydney as a model city for high density living a solution to urban sprawl

The Sustainable City VI C. A. Brebbia, S. Hernandez, E. Tiezzi, 2010 Addresses the multi disciplinary aspects of urban planning a result of the increasing size of cities the amount of resources and services required and the complexity of modern society Innovative tools are required for identifying the high complexity of contemporary cities It is necessary to provide a more scientific approach to urban studies inspired by Prigogine's theories of dissipative structures and to highlight relations between different systems and between systems and the environment The challenge of placing sustainable contemporary cities lies in considering the dynamics of urban systems exchange of energy and matter and the function and maintenance of ordered structures directly or indirectly supplied and maintained by natural systems The task of researchers aware of the complexity of the contemporary city is to increase the capacity to manage human activities pursuing welfare and prosperity in sustainable cities

The Routledge Handbook of Australian Urban and Regional Planning Neil Sipe, Karen Vella, 2017-08-25 Where is planning in twenty first century Australia What are the key challenges that confront planning What does planning scholarship reveal about the state of planning practice in meeting the needs of urban and regional Australians The Routledge Handbook of Australian Urban and Regional Planning includes 27 chapters that answer these and many other questions that confront planners working in urban and regional areas in twenty first century Australia It provides a single source for cutting edge thinking and research across a broad range of the most important topics in urban and regional planning Divided into six parts this handbook explores contexts of urban and regional planning in Australia critical debates in Australian planning planning policy climate change disaster risk and environmental management engaging and taking planning action planning education and research This handbook is a valuable resource for advanced undergraduate and postgraduate students in urban planning built environment urban studies and public policy as well as academics and practitioners across Australia and internationally Urban Regeneration in Australia Kristian Ruming,2018-02-20 Drawing together leading urban academics this book provides the first detailed and cohesive exploration of contemporary urban regeneration in Australian cities It explores the multiple aspects and processes of regeneration including planning policy strategic and regulatory development financing sustainability remediation and transport The book puts forward a unique and innovative scaled analysis of urban regeneration which positions urban regeneration as more than just large scale redevelopment projects It examines the processes of urban change which occur outside inner suburbs which contribute to regenerating the city as a whole The book moves beyond the planning and economic considerations of the regeneration process to describe the social and cultural aspects of regeneration In doing so it focuses on the management of higher density environments culture as a trigger for regeneration and community opposition to the regeneration process Urban Regeneration in Australia would benefit academics students and professionals of urban geography and planning as well as those with a particular interest in Australian urbanism

Greening Affordable Housing Abdullateef Olanrewaju,Zalina Shari,Zhonghua Gou,2019-01-30 Books on green building theories principles and strategies applicable to life cycles of all kinds of buildings and building types are already widely available However those specifically on greening affordable housing that guide various housing stakeholders at different life cycles are still very limited This book intends to fill this gap Integrating green building enables stakeholders to address the environmental component that has not traditionally been seen as an integral part of affordable housing development The book presents theories and principles with practical methods strategies and processes not only to make affordable housing green but also to support economic stability and social equity

Politics, Planning and Housing Supply in Australia, England and Hong Kong Nicole Gurran,Nick Gallent,Rebecca L.H. Chiu,2016-07-15 In recent years many nations have asked why not enough housing is being built or when it is built why it isn t of the highest quality or in the best most sustainable locations Politics Planning and Housing Supply in Australia England and Hong Kong examines the politics and planning of new homes in three very different settings but with shared political traditions in Australia in England and in Hong Kong It investigates the power relationships and politics that underpin the allocation of land for large scale residential schemes and the processes and politics that lead to particular development outcomes Using a comparative framework it asks how different systems of urban governance and planning mediate the supply of land for housing whether and how these system differences influence the location quantity and price of residential land and the implications for housing outcomes what can be learned from these different systems for allocating land building consensus between different stakeholders and delivering a steady supply of high quality and well located homes accessible to and appropriate for diverse housing needs This book frames each case study in a comprehensive examination of national and territorial frameworks before dissecting key local cases These local cases urban renewal and greenfield growth centres in Australia new towns and strategic sites in England and major development schemes in Hong Kong explore how broader urban planning and housing policy goals play out at the local level While the book highlights a number of potential strategies for improving planning and housing delivery processes the real challenge is to give voice to a broader array of interests reconstituting the political process surrounding planning and housing development to prioritise homes in well planned places for the many rather than simply facilitating investment opportunities for the few
