Meghalaya Land People:

North-East India: Land, People and Economy K.R. Dikshit, Jutta K Dikshit, 2013-10-21 North East India comprising the seven contiguous states around Assam the principal state of the region is a relatively unknown yet very fascinating region. The forest clad peripheral mountains home to indigenous peoples like the Nagas, Mizos and the Khasis, the densely populated Brahmaputra valley with its lush green tea gardens and the golden rice fields, the moderately populated hill regions and plateaus and the sparsely inhabited Himalayas form a unique mosaic of natural and cultural landscapes and human interactions with unparalleled diversity. The book provides a glimpse into the region's past and gives a comprehensive picture of its physical environment, people, resources and its economy. The physical environment takes into account not only the structural base of the region, its physical characteristics and natural vegetation but also offers an impression of the region's biodiversity and the measures undertaken to preserve it. The people of the region, especially the indigenous population inhabiting contrasting environments and speaking a variety of regional and local dialects, have received special attention, bringing into focus the role of migration that has influenced the traditional societies for centuries. The book acquaints the readers with spatial distribution, life style and culture of the indigenous people, outlining the unique features of each tribe. The economy of the region, depending originally on primitive farming and cottage industries like silkworm rearing but now greatly transformed with the emergence of modern industries, power resources and expanding trade, is reviewed based on authentic data and actual field observations. The epilogue, the last chapter in the book, summarizes the author's perception of the region and its future.

Mining, Displacement, and Matriliney in Meghalaya Bitopi Dutta, 2022-03-03 This book studies how Development Induced Displacement (DID) radically restructures gender relations in indigenous tribal societies. Through an in-depth case study of the Indian state of Meghalaya, one of the few matrilineal societies of the world, it analyses how people cope with conflicts in their perception of self, family and society brought on by the transition from traditional modes of living to increased urbanisation and how these experiences are different for men and women. It looks at the ways in which this gendered change is experienced inter generationally in different contexts of people's lives including work and leisure activities. The book also investigates people's attitudes towards matrilineal structures and their perception of change on matriliney where mining has played a role in building their view of their matrilineal tradition. Drawing on extensive interviews with individuals directly affected by this phenomenon, the book, part of the Transition in Northeastern India series, makes a significant contribution to the study of DID. It will be useful for scholars and researchers of urbanisation, gender studies, Northeast India studies, development studies, minority studies, public policy, political studies and sociology.
