It was Gysin who provided the hashish fudge recipe published in Alice B Toklas cookbook promising ecstatic reveries and extensions of one's personality on several simultaneous planes. It was Gysin who introduced Burroughs to an automatic writing method called the cut up, a literary progenitor to sampling. And it was Gysin who developed with Ian Sommerville the Dream Machine, a device that allowed people with the flick of a switch to access altered states of consciousness without drugs. Working with the authorization of Gysin's literary executor William S Burroughs, John Geiger has produced the first ever biography of the painter-poet-piper Brion Gysin. The Strand Magazine George Newnes, 1899 The Strand Magazine Sir George Newnes, 1899 Horror Noire Robin R. Means Coleman, 2013-03. From King Kong to Candyman, the boundary pushing genre of the horror film has always been a site for provocative explorations of race in American popular culture. In Horror Noire: Blacks in American Horror Films from 1890's to Present, Robin R Means Coleman traces the history of notable characterizations of blackness in horror cinema and examines key levels of black participation on screen and behind the camera. She argues that horror offers a representational space for black people to challenge the more negative or racist images seen in other media outlets and to portray greater diversity within the concept of blackness itself. Horror Noire presents a unique social history of blacks in America through changing images in horror films. Throughout the text, the reader is encouraged to unpack the genre's racialized imagery as well as the narratives that make up popular culture's commentary on race. Offering a comprehensive chronological survey of the genre, this book addresses a full range of black horror films, including mainstream Hollywood fare as well as art house films, Blaxploitation films, direct to DVD films, and the emerging U.S. hip hop culture inspired Nigerian Nollywood Black horror films. Horror Noire is thus essential reading for anyone seeking to understand how fears and anxieties about race and race relations are made manifest and often challenged on the silver screen. Eat Everything Before You Die Jeffery Paul Chan, 2011-11-01. In this vibrant and original novel, Christopher Columbus Wong, orphan son of a Chinatown bachelor community, is trying to invent a family for himself while all around him, American popular culture is reinventing itself with sex, drugs, and rock n' roll. Christopher finds himself on a wild journey with his gay older brother Peter, a pan-Pacific TV chef, the defrocked, deranged, and eroding ex-director of a Chinatown settlement house, Reverend Ted Candlewick, the sharp-eyed conspiring matriarch Auntie Mary, the bridge between the conflicting values that make up this cultural stew, and Uncle Lincoln, a bachelor short-order cook and quite possibly Christopher and Peter's father. Further complicating Christopher's voyage are his ex-wives Winnie, a Hong Kong immigrant looking for a green card, and Melba, an American orphan of the counterculture. Set against the backdrop of America's wars in Asia and the assimilation of that experience, the refugees, the stereotypes, the food, Eat Everything Before You Die is an ironic commentary on the identities the children of Chinese American immigrants concoct from their questionable histories, cultural practices, and survival strategies. Chan's riotous story will appeal to general readers, particularly those interested in the Asian American experience, and will be of strong enduring interest to students and scholars in Asian American Studies. Punch Mark
