Research Libraries, 1979 American Merchant Ships on the Yangtze, 1920-1941 David H. Grover, 1992-11-17 This work describes the activities of a handful of American companies and about eighty American captains who were trying to run ships on China's great river during the treacherous days between the two world wars The considerable physical dangers of the Yangtze itself were compounded by the greater human hazards imposed by constant fighting among warlords piracy brigandage kidnapping opium and munitions smuggling corruption seizures and other forms of intimidation The events recall and surpass anything of the Wild West in American frontier history No American steamship company survived longer than twelve years in this environment but Standard Oil which was sheltered from the worst of the violence was able to operate its ships throughout the entire period More than a naval military or even economic history this book is also a commentary on a significant but largely unsuccessful American commercial venture overseas one that was eventually scuttled by the actions of the Chinese and the American companies themselves Ship buffs maritime historians students of the evolution of modern China and those interested in American commercial history will find this study useful and entertaining The Publishers Weekly, 1879 Debates of the Senate of the Dominion of Canada Canada. Parliament. Senate, 1927 The United States Catalog, 1921 The United States Catalog Eleanor E. Hawkins, 1921 The United States Catalog; Books in Print January 1, 1912 Marion Effie Potter, 1921 The United States Catalog Supplement, January 1918-June 1921 Eleanor E. Hawkins, 1921 AB Bookman's Weekly, 1998 Building in China Jeffrey W Cody, 2021-01-15 Building in China is about striking an architectural balance between the pull of monumental tradition and the push of technological novelty Centering on the dynamic period of post imperial and pre Communist China the book focuses on the building and city planning initiatives of Henry Murphy a little known American architect who initially ventured to China in 1914 to design a campus for the Yale in China programme but who then found himself captivated by a professional and cultural challenge that lasted two decades how to preserve China's rich architectural traditions while also designing new buildings using up to date Western technologies Murphy's buildings were compromises wine in old bottles as he once called them and the book uses those as lenses through which to understand not only Murphy's quest to find a middle ground for his architecture in China but also to gaze at a tumultuous society facing an uncertain future Murphy's buildings were more than vessels for either aesthetic visions or technical expertise inadvertently they became political emblems as Chinese rulers such as Chiang Kai shek and Sun Yat sen's son called on Murphy for city planning advice to complement their hopes for urban reconstruction There are few serious studies of Western architects in the twentieth century who practiced in non Western contexts and those scant studies that have been published concentrate largely on British French or Dutch examples in colonial settings Hence the book makes significant contributions to the fields of both American and Chinese architectural history Captives of Shanghai David Hubert Grover, Gretchen G. Grover, 1989
