Memoirs From The House Of The Dead:

The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 2004-02-05 In January 1850 Dostoyevsky was sent to a remote Siberian prison camp for his part in a political conspiracy The four years he spent there startlingly re created in The House of the Dead were the most agonizing of his life In this fictionalized account he recounts his soul destroying incarceration through the cool detached tones of his narrator Aleksandr Petrovich Goryanchikov the daily battle for survival the wooden plank beds the cabbage soup swimming with cockroaches his strange family of boastful ugly cruel convicts Yet The House of the Dead is far more than a work of documentary realism it is also a powerful novel of redemption describing one man s spiritual and moral death and the miracle of his gradual reawakening

The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 1915 Notes from a Dead House Fyodor Dostoevsky, 2021-02-02 A beautiful hardcover edition of the first great prison memoir Fyodor Dostoevsky s fictionalized account of his life changing penal servitude in Siberia Translated by Richard Pevear and Larissa Volokhonsky with an introduction by Richard Pevear Sentenced to death for advocating socialism in 1849 Dostoevsky served a commuted sentence of four years of hard labor The account he wrote afterward Notes from a Dead House sometimes translated as The House of the Dead is filled with vivid details of brutal punishments shocking conditions and the psychological effects of the loss of freedom and hope but also of the feuds and betrayals the moments of comedy and the acts of kindness he observed As a nobleman and a political prisoner Dostoevsky was despised by most of his fellow convicts and his first person narrator a nobleman who has killed his wife experiences a similar struggle to adapt He also undergoes a transformation over the course of his ordeal as he discovers that even among the most debased criminals there are strong and beautiful souls Notes from a Dead House reveals the prison as a tragedy both for the inmates and for Russia It endures as a monumental meditation on freedom Everyman s Library pursues the highest production standards printing on acid free cream colored paper with full cloth cases with two color foil stamping decorative endpapers silk ribbon markers European style half round spines and a full color illustrated jacket

The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 1916 Memoirs from the House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 2001 In this almost documentary account of his own experiences of penal servitude in Siberia Dostoevsky describes the physical and mental suffering of the convicts the squalor and the degradation in relentless detail The intricate procedure whereby the men strip for the bath without removing their ten pound leg fetters is an extraordinary tour de force compared by Turgenev to passages from Dante s Inferno Terror and resignation the rampages of a psychopath the brief serenity interlude of Christmas Day are evoked by Dostoevsky writing several years after his release with a strikingly uncharacteristic detachment For this reason House of the Dead is certainly the least Dostoevskian of his works yet paradoxically it ranks among his great masterpieces

Notes from Underground & The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 2023-12-24 In Notes from Underground and The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky presents a profound exploration of the human psyche amid the tumultuous backdrop of 19th century Russia. The former work often regarded as one of the first existential novels delves into the conflicted mind of an unnamed narrator who grapples with isolation, societal norms, and moral ambiguity. In contrast, The House of the Dead draws on Dostoyevsky's own experiences in Siberian exile, presenting a raw depiction of life in a penal colony. Employing a blend of realism and psychological depth, Dostoyevsky's literary style oscillates between the intensely personal and the socially critical, reflecting the era's philosophical currents, including nihilism and the quest for authenticity.

Fyodor Dostoyevsky (1821-1881) was a Russian novelist whose tumultuous life experiences, including imprisonment and suffering over political beliefs, deeply informed his writing. His encounters with poverty, crime, and the complexities of human morality led him to explore themes of existential dread and redemption. These themes in Notes from Underground and The House of the Dead showcase his ability to dissect the human condition while also challenging prevailing notions of free will and societal constructs. For readers who seek to engage with the intricacies of Russian literature and the depths of the human experience, Dostoyevsky's Notes from Underground and The House of the Dead are essential readings. These works not only offer an insightful glimpse into social and psychological dilemmas but also invite reflection on one's own existential questions, making them timeless and relevant masterpieces in the literary canon.

Narrative and Freedom Gary Saul Morson, 1994-01-01 In this important and controversial book, one of our leading literary theorists presents a major philosophical statement about the meaning of literature and the shape of literary texts. Drawing on works by the Russian writers Dostoevsky, Tolstoy, and Chekhov, by other writers as diverse as Sophocles, Cervantes, and George Eliot, by thinkers as varied as William James, Mikhail Bakhtin, and Stephen Jay Gould, and from philosophy, the Bible, television, and much more, Gary Saul Morson examines the relation of time to narrative form and to an ethical dimension of the literary experience. Morson asserts that the way we think about the world and narrate events is often in contradiction to the truly eventful and open nature of daily life. Literature, history, and the sciences frequently present experience as if contingency, chance, and the possibility of diverse futures were all illusory. As a result, people draw conclusions or accept ideologies without sufficiently examining their consequences or alternatives. However, says Morson, there is another way to read and construct texts. He explains that most narratives are developed through foreshadowing and backshadowing: foreshadowing ascribed after the fact, which tends to reduce the multiplicity of possibilities in each moment. But other literary works try to convey temporal openness through a device he calls sideshadowing. Sideshadowing suggests that to understand an event is to grasp what else might have happened. Time is not a line but a shifting set of fields of possibility. Morson argues that this view of time and narrative encourages intellectual pluralism, helps to liberate us from the false certainties of dogmatism, creates a healthy skepticism of present orthodoxies, and makes us aware that there are moral choices available to us.
