reshaping social relations and constituting new social domains on a global scale from virtually borderless electronic markets and Internet based large scale conversations to worldwide open source software development communities transnational corporate production systems and the global knowledge arenas associated with NGO networks This book explores how such digital formations emerge from the ever changing intersection of computer centered technologies and the broad range of social contexts that underlie much of what happens in cyberspace While viewing technologies fundamentally in social rather than technical terms Digital Formations nonetheless emphasizes the importance of recognizing the specific technical capacities of digital technologies Importantly it identifies digital formations as a new area of study in the social sciences and in thinking about globalization The ten chapters by leading scholars examine key social political and economic developments associated with these new configurations of organization space and interaction They address the operation of digital formations and their implications for the development of longstanding institutions and for their wider contexts and fields and they consider the political economic and other forces shaping those formations and how the formations in turn are shaping such forces Following a conceptual introduction by the editors are chapters by Hayward Alker Jonathan Bach and David
