Preventing Violence In America:

Preventing Violence in America Robert L. Hampton, Pamela Jenkins, Thomas P. Gullotta, 1995-11-16 The editors have assembled an outstanding group of authors knowledgeable and experienced in the causes and prevention of violence The volume is an excellent blend of history theory applications and training programs dealing with violence I learned important facts about epidemiology resilience and public health models There are also interesting special chapters on both perpetrators and on victims especially women and girls This book is a gold mine of useful references George W Albee Past President American Psychological Association Unfortunately violence permeates every aspect of American life It s on our streets in our schools and even in our homes Preventing Violence in America provides an important service by creating a greater public awareness and understanding of this challenge This book helps in our fight against crime and violence and in reaching our ultimate goal of creating a peaceful society for America s families Chris Dodd U S Senator CT and Chair Senate Committee on Children Family Drugs Alcoholism The editors have assembled an outstanding book that combines the history theory applications and training for dealing with violence in our society They quickly dispel the common belief that in times past the actual conditions and social climate were better than they are today This book promotes an understanding of the social context of violent behavior whether occurring within the family or larger community and points out connections between violence occurring within the home and in the community I was most impressed by the chapter written by Martin Bloom which goes into great detail about the factors that contribute to the development of a resilient person one who can turn away from violence in spite of living in a negative environment This book offers as complete a discussion of violence as I ve seen It should be required reading for anyone who is seriously interested in trying to reduce the incidence of violence in our society Joseph M Rimmer in Science Books Films Why are people hurting maiming and killing one another in our society What can be done to address the problem of violence in the United States Preventing Violence in America confronts violence head on by exploring these questions and examining current strategies for prevention A talented group of scholars and practitioners joins up to review the history and theoretical explanations of violence and then tackles issues related to the disproportionate presence of violence within minority populations the concept of psychological resiliency how spirituality may serve as a protective factor and the role of TV in promoting violence The volume also analyzes prevention and intervention strategies in public health among gangs in the High Risk Youth program and the implementation of the Second Step curriculum for use in school systems Preventing Violence in America offers the most current information in violence prevention to professionals in social work and crime reduction as well as researchers and students in victimology family studies developmental psychology and sociology

Preventing Violence in America Robert L. Hampton, Pamela Jenkins, Thomas P. Gullotta, 1996 What can be done to address the problem of violence in society The contributors to this volume both scholars and practitioners examine this question by exploring the history of violence together with theoretical explanations The book discusses such issues as the disproportionate presence of violence within North American minority populations the concept of psychological resiliency how spirituality may serve as a protective factor and the role of television in promoting violence The contributors also address prevention and intervention strategies among gangs of young people and the implementation of special programmes in schools

Handbook of Health Promotion and Disease Prevention

James M. Raczynski, Ralph J. DiClemente, 2013-11-11 The idea for this volume developed when we were co teaching our introductory master's level course in the Department of Health Behavior at the UAB School of Public Health a core course for all masters of public health students in the school regardless of the department in which they enrolled or the focus of their studies Hence in the course we sought to provide both students in our department as well as those who might not ever again take a health behavior course with an overview that would both truly represent the field and substantially provide educational research and public health practice benefits This was and continues to be a challenge with the diversity of students specializing in fields that include not only health behavior but also bio statistics environmental health sciences epidemiology health care organization and policy international health and maternal and child health The course that we taught attempted to provide the students with an overview of some of the important health promotion and disease prevention theories methods and policy issues while reviewing applications of these theories and methods to promoting health and preventing disease through a variety of channels for a variety of disease outcomes and among a variety of populations Since no one text provided this variety of readings we depended on readings and guest lectures
