Preventing HIV Infection Among Injecting Drug Users in High-Risk Countries Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Committee on the Prevention of HIV Infection Among Injecting Drug Users in High-Risk Countries, 2006-12-20 Drug dependence is a complex chronic relapsing condition that is often accompanied by severe health psychological economic legal and social consequences Injecting drug users are particularly vulnerable to HIV and other bloodborne infections such as hepatitis C as a result of sharing contaminated injecting equipment All drug dependent individuals including injecting drug users IDUs may be at increased risk of HIV infection because of high risk sexual behaviors There are an estimated 13.2 million injecting drug users IDUs world wide 78 percent of whom live in developing or transitional countries The sharing of contaminated injecting equipment has become a major driving force of the global AIDS epidemic and is the primary mode of HIV transmission in many countries In some cases epidemics initially fueled by the sharing of contaminated injecting equipment are spreading through sexual transmission from IDUs to non injecting populations and through perinatal transmission to newborns Reversing the rise of HIV infections among IDUs has thus become an urgent global public health challenge one that remains largely unmet In response to this challenge the Institute of Medicine convened a public workshop in Geneva in December 2005 to gather information from experts on IDU driven HIV epidemics in the most affected regions of the world with an emphasis on countries throughout Eastern Europe the Commonwealth of Independent States and significant parts of Asia Experts from other regions also provided information on their experiences in preventing HIV infection among IDUs This report provides a summary of the workshop discussions Preventing HIV Infection among Injecting

Drug Users in High Risk Countries describes the evidence on the intermediate outcomes of drug related risk and sex related risk prior to examining the impact on HIV transmission This report focuses on programs that are designed to prevent the transmission of HIV among injecting drug users These programs range from efforts to curtail non medical drug use to those that encourage reduction in high risk behavior among drug users Although the report focuses on HIV prevention for IDUs in high risk countries the Committee considered evidence from countries around the world The findings and recommendations of this report are also applicable to countries where injecting drug use is not the primary driver but in which injection drug use is nevertheless associated with significant HIV transmission

Preventing HIV Transmission National Research Council and Institute of Medicine, Institute of Medicine, Panel on Needle Exchange and Bleach Distribution Programs, 1995-10-14 This volume addresses the interface of two major national problems the epidemic of HIV AIDS and the widespread use of illegal injection drugs Should communities have the option of giving drug users sterile needles or bleach for cleaning needs in order to reduce the spread of HIV Does needle distribution worsen the drug problem as opponents of such programs argue Do they reduce the spread of other serious diseases such as hepatitis Do they result in more used needles being carelessly discarded in the community The panel takes a critical look at the available data on needle exchange and bleach distribution programs reaches conclusions about their efficacy and offers concrete recommendations for public policy to reduce the spread of HIV AIDS The book includes current knowledge about the epidemiologies of HIV AIDS and injection drug use characteristics of needle exchange and bleach distribution programs and views on those programs from diverse community groups and a discussion of laws designed to control possession of needles their impact on needle sharing among injection drug users and their implications for needle exchange programs
