

Competition vs. Privatization

Issue 2: The Distinction Between Competition and Privatization

- Competition generates incentives to cut costs so as to maintain business, funding, or reputation.
- Privatization substitutes private incentives (profit) for public incentives (public service).
- They do not necessarily go together.

Telecommunications Daniel Ryan,1997-03-25 Comprises a collection of essays dealing with the process of privatization of telecommunications in Asia Europe and Latin America Examines through case studies how countries respond to the new economic environment An Empirical Analysis of competition, Privatization, and Regulation in telecommunications Market in Africa and Latin America Scott J. Wallsten,1999

The Impact of Privatization and Competition in the Telecommunications Sector Around the World Wei Li,Lixin Colin Xu,2004 Using a comprehensive country level panel data set covering the period from 1981 to 1998 we examine the impact of privatization and competition in the telecommunications sector around the world Privatization contributed substantially to labor shedding output growth network expansion and improvements in labor productivity as well as total factor productivity But how countries privatized is important On the one hand share issue privatization facilitated the development of the mobile market segment Granting a newly privatized operator a period of exclusive market access on the other hand reduced the gains from privatization owing to the output restricting tendency associated with market power but did not entirely negate them The presence of competitive pressure in the market was associated with more employment higher output faster network expansion and higher labor and total factor productivity We find evidence of complementarity between privatization and competition in that competition increased the gains from privatization and vice versa Our estimates show that half of the output growth between 1990 and 1998 was attributable to privatization and competition after controlling for input growth Competition appeared to have a larger impact on labor and total factor productivity than did privatization The Privatisation of European Telecommunications Johan From,Kjell A. Eliassen,2017-11-28 This international volume presents a comprehensive comparative study of the transformation of the European telecommunications industry from 1990 to the present The book focuses on the old incumbent operators and their dramatic change from state agencies to listed companies It analyzes the liberalization process as well as the corporatization and privatization of these companies The contributors assess the conditions for the transformations taking place the driving forces for change the effects to management the efforts of the EU during these processes and ultimately the role of the private owner Political science publications have all but excluded analysis of the newly privatized companies their contribution to the liberalization process both before and after privatization and the interplay between the national political and company levels The book redresses this shortcoming and also features a double empirical focus in that the main national incumbents in Europe are analyzed and compared to Telenor the Norwegian former incumbent Competition Problems in Liberalized Telecommunications Milena Stoyanova,2008-01-01 This innovative study of the role of competition law in the telecommunications industry starts from a classic perspective While in principle regulation benefits social welfare and efficient allocation of resources past regulatory experience shows that regulation can be flawed and lead to welfare harm rather than good In the telecommunications industry specifically inappropriately designed sector specific remedies and regulatory delays in the introduction of new telecommunications services can hold up the development of the market towards effective competition and could incur considerable welfare losses In addition conventional antitrust analysis still lags behind the dynamic nature of the electronic communications markets Milena Stoyanova sets out to establish a new understanding of the role of sector specific regulation and competition law enforcement in the electronic communications sector addressing such questions as the following and Why a new regulatory framework and Are sectoral regulation and competition law enforcement mutually exclusive or complementary and Why should electronic communications markets be regulated to conform to competition law principles and What does competition law add to sector specific regulation and What is the relationship or proportion between regulation and competition law enforcement An overview of the telecommunications liberalization process initiated at European Community level reveals such problems as a divergent approach of national regulatory authorities in the application of one and the same norms inability of competition authorities to rightly assess the technicalities underlying a competition problem and difficulty in carrying out a periodical oversight of compliance with the competition law remedies The author discusses the legal basis and rationale for the application of the essential facility doctrine to the electronic communications sector and argues for new regulatory responses to the emergence of collective dominant firms in an oligopolistic setting and to the potential of multifirm conduct to restrict competition through price squeezing and other tactics The book concludes with a specific case study on the harmonisation of recent Bulgarian legislation with the European Community sector specific and competition law regimes and propos the electronic communications sector Effective competition in the electronic communications market is crucial for securing the dynamic role of the entire information and communications technologies sector of which electronic communications form the largest segment The sound and well informed recommendations in this book ably address common and persistent problems making Competition Problems in Liberalized Telecommunications a forward looking mainstay for practitioners and other professionals involved in all aspects of the field The Financial Economics of Privatization

William L. Megginson, 2005-01-13 Central to the book's content is its focus on where privatisation stands today and what are the next frontiers the why and how behind countries who privatise certain industries and whether privatisation works as an economic tool Recent Developments in Mobile Communications Juan P. Maicas, 2011-12-16 Recent Developments in Mobile Communications A Multidisciplinary Approach offers a multidisciplinary perspective on the mobile telecommunications industry The aim of the chapters is to offer both comprehensive and up to date surveys of recent developments and the state of the art of various economical and technical aspects of mobile telecommunications markets The economy oriented section offers a variety of chapters dealing with different topics within the field An overview is given on the effects of privatization on mobile service providers performance application of the LAM model to market segmentation the details of WAC the current state of the telecommunication market a potential framework for the analysis of the composition of both ecosystems and value networks using tussles and control points the return of quality investments applied to the mobile telecommunications industry the current state in the networks effects literature The other section of the book approaches the field from the technical side Some of the topics dealt with are antenna parameters for mobile communication systems emerging wireless technologies that can be employed in RVC communication ad hoc networks in mobile communications DoA based Switching DoAS Coordinated MultiPoint transmission and reception CoMP conventional and unconventional CACs and water quality dynamic monitoring systems based on web server embedded technology EU Competition Law and Regulation in the Converging Telecommunications, Media and IT Sectors Nikos Th Nikolinakos,2006-01-01 This book presents the most thoroughgoing model yet offered to ensure the emergence of a genuinely competitive electronic communications industry in Europe In the course of its in depth analysis the discussion focuses on such factors as the following EU telecommunications policy as revealed in liberalization and harmonization legislative measures the EU electronic communications framework case law covering issues of refusal to supply and the essential facilities doctrine application of Article 82 EC to bottlenecks specific types of an undertakings unilateral behaviour that may often occupy NRAs and competition authorities in the context of their ex post competition law investigations under Article 82 EC strategic alliances and mergers in the move toward multimedia access to premium content and the emergence of new media the scope of content regulation in the online environment and broadband regulation of local loop unbundling and bitstream access The book also provides practical guidance on issues concerning the complicated market definition and analysis mechanism promulgated by the European Commission s Recommendation and Guidelines Telecommunications performance, reforms, and governance , Inside Latin American Telecommunications Steven Harper,1997 Industry Structure and Pricing Mark A. Jamison,2013-03-09 Industry Structure and Pricing The New Rivalry in Infrastructure extends current economic models by incorporating effects of actual and potential rivalry in markets outside the markets of immediate interest Focusing on the contestable model the author shows how diverse patterns of actual and potential rivalry called multilateral rivalry or MLR affect the appropriateness of many regulatory policies It is specifically shown that many conclusions of the contestability literature are overly generous to firms that might want to protect or extend their monopoly positions While this book s refinement to existing economic theory gives strong results it is still based on static production functions and demands integrated to provide a dynamic view of multilateral rivalry The Political Economy of Privatization and Competition Wei Li,Christine Zhen-Wei Qiang,Lixin Colin Xu,2001 Entrepreneurial Management and Public Policy Van R. Future of Mail Michael A. Crew, Paul R. Kleindorfer, 2012 This compilation of original papers selected from the 19th Conference on Postal and Delivery Economics and authored by an international cast of economists lawyers regulators and industry practitioners addresses perhaps the major problem that has ever faced the postal sector electronic competition from information and communication technologies ICT This has increased significantly over the last few years with a consequent serious drop in mail volume All postal services have been hard hit by ICT but probably the hardest hit is the United States Postal Service which has lost almost a quarter of its mail volume since 2007 The loss of mail volume has a devastating effect on scale economies which now work against post offices forcing up their unit costs Strategies to stem the loss in volume include non linear pricing or volume discounts increased efficiency and the development of new products This loss of mail volume from ICT is one of a number of current problems addressed in this volume The Universal Service Obligation USO continues to be a leading issue and concern that ICT undermines postal services ability to finance the USO is discussed The importance of measuring and forecasting demand and costs take on even greater importance as ICT undermines the foundations of the postal business This thought provoking book brings to bear new analyses of the most serious threat post offices have ever faced and raises fundamental questions as to the future of mail Multi Modal Competition and the Future of Mail is an ideal resource for students researchers in regulation and competition law postal administrations policy makers consulting firms and regulatory bodies

Privatization and Emerging Equity Markets Ira W. Lieberman, Christopher D. Kirkness, 1998-01-01 The text provides an overview of privatization and emerging equity markets describes the role of privatization providing critical mass for new stock markets and examines investment opportunities that deepen existing stock markets

Competition Law in Developing Countries Thomas K. Cheng, 2020-05-27 This book brings together perspectives of development economics and law to tackle the relationship between competition law enforcement and economic development It addresses the question of whether and how competition law enforcement helps to promote economic growth and development This question is highly pertinent for developing countries largely because many developing countries have only adopted competition law in recent years about thirty jurisdictions had in place a competition law in the early 1980s and there are now more than 130 competition law regimes across the world of which many are developing countries The book proposes a customized approach to competition law enforcement for developing countries set against the background of the academic and policy debate concerning convergence of competition law The implicit premise of convergence is that there may exist one or a few correct approaches to competition law enforcement which in most cases emanate from developed jurisdictions that are applicable to all This book rejects this assumption and argues that developing countries ought to tailor competition law enforcement to their own economic and political circumstances In particular it suggests how competition law enforcement can better incorporate development concerns without causing undue dilution of its traditional focus on protecting consumer welfare It proposes ways in which approaches to competition law enforcement need to be adjusted to reflect the special economic characteristics of developing country economies and the more limited enforcement capacity of developing country competition authorities Finally it also addresses the long running debate concerning the desirability and viability of industrial policy for developing countries The author would like to acknowledge the Research Grants Council of Hong Kong for its generous support The work in this book was fully supported by a grant from the Research Grants Council of Hong Kong Project No HKU 742412H

Towards Competition in Network Industries Paul J.J. Welfens,George Yarrow,Ruslan Grinberg,Cornelius Graack,2012-12-06 Competition in network industries faces particular problems which are analyzed from both a theoretical and policy perspective Issues of vertical integration deregulation and privatization are covered While competition and privatization are rapidly unfolding in telecommunications in Western and Eastern Europe energy and railway transportation represent sectors of more gradual liberalization The different market characteristics of telecommunications energy and transportation raise consistency problems in the fields of deregulation investment strategies and internationalization While transformation policies create opportunities for liberalization in Eastern Europe and Russia the latter shows critical problems in ending monopoly and state ownership Network industries could be subject to competition and promise major investment opportunities plus consumer benefits
