Statelessness in the Caribbean Kristy A.

Belton,2017-08-25 Without citizenship from any country more than 10 million people worldwide are unable to enjoy the rights freedoms and protections that citizens of a state take for granted They are stateless and formally belong nowhere The stateless typically face insurmountable obstacles in their ability to be self determining agents and are vulnerable to a variety of harms including neglect and exploitation Through an analysis of statelessness in the Caribbean Kristy A Belton argues for the reconceptualization of statelessness as a form of forced displacement Belton argues that the stateless those who are displaced in place suffer similarly to those who are forcibly displaced but unlike the latter they are born and reside within the country that denies or deprives them of citizenship She explains how the peculiar form of displacement experienced by the stateless often occurs under nonconflict and noncrisis conditions and within democratic regimes all of which serve to make such people s plight less visible and consequently heightens their vulnerability Statelessness in the Caribbean addresses a number of current issues including belonging migration and forced displacement the treatment and inclusion of the ethnic and racial other the application of international human rights law and doctrine to local contexts and the ability of individuals to be self determining agents who create the conditions of their own making Belton concludes that statelessness needs to be addressed as a matter of global distributive justice Citizenship is not only a necessary good for an individual in a world carved into states but is also a human right and a status that should not be determined by states alone In order to resolve their predicament the stateless must have the right to choose to belong to the communities of their birth

B. Cook,2014-08-13 Across East Asia intra regional migration is more prevalent than inter regional movements and the region s diverse histories geopolitics economic development ethnic communities and natural environments make it an excellent case study for examining the relationship between irregular migration and human security Irregular migration can be broadly defined as people s mobility that is unauthorised or forced and this book expands on the existing migration security nexus by moving away from the traditional state security lens and instead shifting the focus to human security With in depth empirical country case studies from the region including China Japan North Korea the Philippines Burma Myanmar Cambodia Thailand and Singapore the contributors to this book develop a human security approach to the study of irregular migration In cases of irregular migration such as undocumented labour migrants asylum seekers internally displaced people trafficked persons and smuggled people human security is the cause and or effect of migration in both sending and receiving countries By adopting a human security lens the chapters provide striking insights into the motivations vulnerabilities and insecurities of migrants the risks dangers and illegality they are exposed to during their journeys as well as the potential or imagined threats they pose to the new host countries This multidisciplinary book is based on extensive fieldwork and interviews with migrants aid workers NGO activists and immigration officers As such it will appeal to students and scholars of Asian politics and security as well as those with interests in international relations social policy law geography and migration
