and performance music medicine the history of affect and the emotions the literature and practices of devotion the theory and history of gender and sexuality ecocriticism and the environment theories of aesthetics medievalism Reading for form can mean reading for formation Understanding processes through which a text was created can help us in characterizing its form But what is involved in bringing a diachronic process to bear upon a synchronic work When does literary formation begin and end When does form happen These questions emerge with urgency in the interactions between English poet Geoffrey Chaucer and Italian trecento authors Dante Alighieri Giovanni Boccaccio and Francis Petrarch In fourteenth century Italy new ways were emerging of configuring the relation between author and reader Previously medieval reading was often oriented around the significance of the text to the individual reader In Italy however reading was beginning to be understood as a way of getting back to a work's initial formation This book tracks how concepts of reading developed within Italian texts including Dante's Vita nova Boccaccio's Filostrato and Teseida and Petrarch's Seniles impress themselves upon Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde and Canterbury Tales It argues that Chaucer's poetry reveals the implications of reading for formation above all that it both depends upon and effaces the historical perspective and temporal experience of the individual reader Problems raised within Chaucer's poetry thus inform this book's broader methodological argument that there is no one moment at which the formation of Chaucer's poetry ends rather its form emerges in and through process of reading within time
