Europe's Growth Challenge Anders Aslund, Simeon Djankov, 2016-12-06 Europe is in a serious crisis but that it can face up to these challenges In Europe's Growth Challenge Anders Aslund and Simeon Djankov argue that the European Union can only be successful if it carries out substantial changes in the European economic system European society benefits from equality in income excellent healthcare and basic education good infrastructure and developed institutions for the rule of law But Europe has entered a period of economic stagnation and is distracted by multiple challenges Economic and political strains have stalled vital reforms while the threat of disunion is evident By focusing on what works in Europe and the great variations within Europe Aslund and Djankov show how Europe can develop a strategy for higher economic growth They advocate a reduction of the fiscal role of the state an opening up of services and digital trade an easing of the regulatory and tax burdens on labor an improved environment for startups and innovation pension reform and the development of Europe's energy union In spite of Europe's many achievements Europe needs to address its growth challenge to stay afloat Aslund and Djankov provide novel insights and provocative ways forward Challenge , 1975 Tourism as a Challenge Maria F. Schmitz, P. Diaz (Anthropologist), 2013 The first tourist destinations were primarily consolidated in the early twentieth century Since then tourism has undergone significant changes in its economic and social components Over time many of these destinations have now come to represent mass tourism and are the subject of many studies on the impacts of tourism and competitiveness policies The conclusions of these studies point to the need for new perspectives and strategies ranging from adaptation to new contexts to a radical change in targets Concepts such as sustainability nature biodiversity or climate change have now been added to the tourism industry with varying degrees of knowledge and skill These offer a great opportunity to improve a model of tourism previously oriented towards business and the institutional rhetoric of sustainability a fact now recognised by tourists as representing the negative effects of conventional tourism Management of these innovations should include among its aims environmental education and orient visitors towards awareness and respect for sustainability even outside their leisure time To this end the tourist needs to be made aware of all those involved and their commitment to managing the destination as enjoying the territory should be based upon minimising the socio ecological impacts of tourism and on motivating nature conservation and participation of local populations in both these goals as well as in the economic benefits obtained The challenge entails the destination finding a good balance between economic and cultural benefits landscape conservation and tourist satisfaction This fifth volume of the Tourism Today Series presents a collection of papers addressing the how to manage these types of uses at a variety of destinations and in multiple contextual realities These edited papers were selected from those presented at different international conferences organised by the Wessex Institute of Technology They address important issues related to tourism as a tool for development which will give a better understanding of some of the current challenges

Challenges for Governance Structures in Urban and Regional Development / Fragen zur Steuerung von Stadt-, Land- und Regionalentwicklung Erwin Hepperle,Robert Dixon-Gough,Reinfried Mansberger,Jenny Paulsson,Franz Reuter,Meltem Yilmaz,2015-02-03

The governance structures in urban and regional development have undergone processes of transformation since the medieval period resulting in them becoming increasingly decentralised diversified and centred about middle class values An essential part was played by the initial concepts of land ownership and planned land use These were then complemented by additional items from land taxation to the concepts that began to evolve during the 20th century including diverse elements such as land economics and social responsibility This volume concentrates on a diverse range of topics centering on the relationships between governance and the organization of entities within both urban and rural areas The essays indicate that the development of systems of governance runs parallel to and reflects the indelible print humankind has made upon all forms of landscape Over time various forms of governance evolved but in the course of the last century they also became more accountable Together this resulted in a continual process of evolving boundaries and territories of political changes and of the subsequent divisions between urban and rural areas as well as urban subdivisions In addition to this complex mixture of land and spatial planning issues we are faced today with rapidly changing demographic profiles across all of Europe and not the least with the emerging awareness of how social responsibilities impact this issue Even though this volume cannot provide all the answers to the many complex problems together the essays present a stimulating interdisciplinary approach that challenges conventional thoughts in European land and spatial planning
