Institute of International Studies, Leiden University, Netherlands

I. Introduction

Early in 1971 UNESCO asked us to prepare a new International Repertory of Institutions for Peace and Conflict Research, and to undertake an analysis of the data collected for that purpose.¹ In order to carry out a task like this it is necessary to formulate, at least for oneself, as clearly as possible, what is to be understood by this kind of activity, called peace and conflict research.² What then do we understand by peace and conflict research? 1. This article is based on the introduction to the International Repertory of Institutions for Peace and Conflict Research, UNESCO, Paris 1972, and is published here with UNESCO's permission. The author is Director of the Institute for International Studies, University of Leyden and former Editor of the International Peace Research Newsletter. He wants to express his gratitude to all those who assisted through their advice and criticism to improve the quality of this paper and to all the institutions which facilitated his work by promptly supplying the necessary data. Is it a scientific discipline in its own right or politics in
