Reflection Revisited:

The Centered Mind Peter Carruthers, 2015 The Centered Mind offers a new view of the nature and causal determinants of both reflective thinking and more generally the stream of consciousness Peter Carruthers argues that conscious thought is always sensory based relying on the resources of the working memory system This system has been much studied by cognitive scientists It enables sensory images to be sustained and manipulated through attentional signals directed at midlevel sensory areas of the brain When abstract conceptual representations are bound into these images we consciously experience ourselves as making judgments or arriving at decisions Thus one might hear oneself as judging in inner speech that it is time to go home for example However our amodal non sensory propositional attitudes are never actually among the contents of this stream of conscious reflection Our beliefs goals and decisions are only ever active in the background of consciousness working behind the scenes to select the sensory based imagery that occurs in working memory They are never themselves conscious Drawing on extensive knowledge of the scientific literature on working memory and related topics Carruthers builds an argument that challenges the central assumptions of many philosophers In addition to arguing that non sensory propositional attitudes are never conscious he also shows that they are never under direct intentional control Written with his usual clarity and directness The Centered Mind will be essential reading for all philosophers and cognitive scientists interested in the nature of human thought processes

Reflective Practice Roger Barnard, Jonathon Ryan, 2017-03-27 The aim of the book is to explain a range of options for implementing the reflective practice cycle in educational settings in various international contexts It presents a series of empirical case studies illustrating many different ways of implementing the reflective practice cycle and how they can be researched by practitioners and academics Increasing attention is given by teachers and teacher educators to the construct and implementation of reflective practice as a form of bottom up autonomous professional development The aim of the book is to explain a range of options for implementing the reflective practice cycle in educational settings in various international contexts Written by international academics these studies show how reflection can be interpreted in different cultural contexts The book concludes with a discussion by Anne Burns of the implications of these case studies for action research It is hoped that the book will enable practitioners and their mentors to consider how best to implement reflective procedures in the specific contexts in which they work Chapters in the book include Lesson planning The fundamental platform for reflecting for action Reflecting on action Lesson transcripts Pair discussions for reflecting on action Stimulated recall Observation leading to reflection This book will be key reading for researchers in the fields of teacher education

A Rhetoric of Reflection Kathleen Yancey, 2016-08-15 Reflection in writing studies is now entering a third generation Dating from the 1970s the first generation of reflection focused on identifying and describing internal cognitive processes assumed to be part of composing The second generation operating in both classroom and assessment scenes in the 1990s developed mechanisms for externalizing reflection making it visible and thus explicitly available to help writers Now a third generation of work in reflection is emerging As mapped by the contributors to A Rhetoric of Reflection this iteration of research and practice is taking up new questions in new sites of activity and with new theories It comprises attention to transfer of writing knowledge and practice teaching and assessment portfolios linguistic and cultural difference and various media including print and digital It conceptualizes conversation as a primary reflective medium both inside and outside the classroom and for individuals and collectives and articulates the role that different genres play in hosting reflection Perhaps most important in the work of this third generation is the identification and increasing appreciation of the epistemic value of reflection of its ability to help make new meanings and of its rhetorical power for both scholars and students Contributors Anne Beaufort Kara Taczak Liane Robertson Michael Neal Heather Ostman Cathy Leaker Bruce Horner Asao B Inoue Tyler Richmond J Elizabeth Clark Naomi Silver Christina Russell McDonald Pamela Flash Kevin Roozen Jeff Sommers Doug Hesse Reflection in Learning and Professional Development Jennifer A. Naming What We Know Linda Adler-Kassner, Elizabeth Wardle, 2015-06-15 Naming What We Know examines the core principles of knowledge in the discipline of writing studies using the lens of threshold concepts concepts that are critical for epistemological participation in a discipline The first part of the book defines and describes thirty seven threshold concepts of the discipline in entries written by some of the field s most active researchers and teachers all of whom participated in a collaborative wiki discussion guided by the editors These entries are clear and accessible written for an audience of writing scholars students and colleagues in other disciplines and policy makers outside the academy Contributors describe the conceptual background of the field and the principles that run throughout practice whether in research teaching assessment or public work around writing Chapters in the second part of the book describe the benefits and challenges of using threshold concepts in specific sites first year writing programs WAC WID programs writing centers writing majors and for professional development to present this framework in action Naming What We Know opens a dialogue about the concepts that writing scholars and teachers agree are critical and about why those concepts should and do matter to people outside the field

The Neuropsychology of the Unconscious: Integrating Brain and Mind in Psychotherapy (Norton Series on Interpersonal Neurobiology) Efrat Ginot, 2015-06-08 A scientific take on the still central therapeutic concept of the unconscious More than one hundred years after Freud began publishing some of his seminal theories the concept of the unconscious still occupies a central position in many theoretical frameworks and clinical approaches When trying to understand clients internal and interpersonal struggles it is almost inconceivable not to look for unconscious motivation conflicts and relational patterns Clinicians also consider it a breakthrough to recognize how our own unconscious patterns have interacted with those of our clients Although clinicians use concepts such as the unconscious and dissociation in actuality many do not take into account the newly emerging neuropsychological attributes of nonconscious processes As a result assumptions and lack of clarity overtake information that can become central in our clinical work This revolutionary book presents a new model of the unconscious one that is continuing to emerge from the integration of neuropsychological research with clinical experience Drawing from clinical observations of specific therapeutic cases affect theory research into cognitive neuroscience and neuropsychological findings the book presents an expanded picture of nonconscious processes The model moves from a focus on dissociated affects behaviors memories and the fantasies that are unconsciously created to viewing unconscious as giving expression to whole patterns of feeling thinking and behaving patterns that are so integrated and entrenched as to make them our personality traits Topics covered include the centrality of subcortical regions automaticity repetition and biased memory systems role of the amygdala and its sensitivity to fears in shaping and coloring unconscious self systems self narratives therapeutic enactments therapeutic resistance defensive systems and narcissism therapeutic approaches designed to utilize some of the new understandings regarding unconscious processes and their interaction with higher level conscious ones embedded in the prefrontal cortex

Social Domains of Truth Lambert Zuidervart, 2023-03-10 Truth is in trouble In response this book presents a new conception of truth It recognizes that prominent philosophers have questioned whether the idea of truth is important Some have asked why we even need it Their questions reinforce broader trends in Western society where many wonder whether or why we should pursue truth Indeed some pundits say we have become a post truth society Yet there are good reasons not to embrace the cultural Zeitgeist or go with the philosophical flow reasons to regard truth as a substantive and socially significant idea This book explains why First it argues that propositional truth is only one kind of truth an important kind but not all important Then it shows how propositional truth belongs to the more comprehensive process of truth as a whole This process is a dynamic correlation between human fidelity to societal principles and a life giving disclosure of society The correlation comes to expression in distinct social domains of truth where either propositional or nonpropositional truth is primary The final chapters lay out five such domains science politics art religion and philosophy Anyone who cares about the future of truth in society will want to read this pathbreaking book

The Habermas Handbook Hauke Brunkhorst, Regina Kreide, Cristina Lafont, 2017-10-24 Jürgen Habermas is one of the most influential philosophers of our time His diagnoses of contemporary society and concepts such as the public sphere communicative rationality and cosmopolitanism have influenced virtually all academic disciplines spurred political debates and shaped intellectual life in Germany and beyond for more than fifty years In The Habermas Handbook leading Habermas scholars elucidate his thought providing essential insight into his key concepts the breadth of his work and his influence across politics law the social sciences and public life This volume offers a comprehensive overview and an in depth analysis of Habermas's work in its entirety After examining his intellectual biography it goes on to illuminate the social and intellectual context of Habermasian thought such as the Frankfurt School speech act theory and contending theories of democracy The Handbook provides an extensive account of Habermas's texts ranging from his dissertation on Schelling to his most recent writing about Europe It illustrates the development of his thought and its frequently controversial reception while elaborating the central ideas of his work The book also provides a glossary of key terms and concepts making the complexity of Habermas's thought accessible to a broad readership

Graphene Optics Ricardo A Depine, 2017-01-01 This book is a rigorous but concise macroscopic description of the interaction between electromagnetic radiation and structures containing graphene sheets two dimensional structures It presents canonical problems with translational invariant geometries in which the solution of the original vectorial problem can be reduced to the treatment of two scalar problems corresponding to two basic polarization modes The book includes computational problems and makes use of the Python programming language to make numerical calculations accessible to any science student Many figures within are accompanied by Python scripts

Professional Practice in Health, Education and the Creative Arts Joy Higgs, Angie Titchen, 2008-04-15 Society is rapidly changing its expectations of professionals in all arenas In this book we focus on changing patterns of professional practice in health education and the creative arts In each of these areas professional practice care is undergoing major reform in a complex and rapidly changing environment This multi authored text explores professional practice in four key dimensions doing knowing being and becoming These concepts have been chosen to represent professional practice as much more than applying learned knowledge in practice situations The authors present professional practice as a lived and dynamic experience as well as a process a service for and with others and a way of being and behaving The text explores the essential unity of knowledge and practice through discourse narrative imagery and critical debate This is a book for all those seeking to learn and to improve practice Writing across Contexts Kathleen Blake Yancy,Liane Robertson,Kara Tacsak,2014-04-15 Addressing how composers transfer both knowledge about and practices of writing Writing across Contexts explores the grounding theory behind a specific composition curriculum called Teaching for Transfer TFT and analyzes the efficacy of the approach Finding that TFT courses aid students in transfer in ways that other kinds of composition courses do not the authors demonstrate that the content of this curriculum including its reflective practice provides a unique set of resources for students to call on and repurpose for new writing tasks The authors provide a brief historical review give attention to current curricular efforts designed to promote such transfer and develop new insights into the role of prior knowledge in students ability to transfer writing knowledge and practice presenting three models of how students respond to and use new knowledge assemblage remix and critical incident A timely and significant contribution to the field Writing across Contexts will be of interest to graduate students composition scholars WAC and writing in the disciplines scholars and writing program administrators
