Browder, 1995-11-01 Thinking

Freedom in Africa Michael Neocosmos, 2016-12-01 Thinking Freedom in Africa conceives an emancipatory politics beginning from the axiom that people think Previous ways of conceiving the universal emancipation of humanity have in practice ended in failure Marxism anti colonial nationalism and neo liberalism all understand the achievement of universal emancipation through a form of state politics Marxism which had encapsulated the idea of freedom for most of the twentieth century was found wanting when it came to thinking emancipation because social interests and identities were understood as simply reflected in political subjectivity which could only lead to statist authoritarianism Neo liberalism and anti colonial nationalism have also both assumed that freedom is realizable through the state and have been equally authoritarian in their relations to those they have excluded on the African continent and elsewhere Thinking Freedom in Africa then conceives emancipatory politics beginning from the axiom that people think In other words the idea that anyone is capable of engaging in a collective thought practice which exceeds social place interests and identities and which thus begins to think a politics of universal humanity Using the work of thinkers such as Alain Badiou Jacques Rancière Sylvain Lazarus Frantz Fanon and many others along with the inventive thought of people themselves in their experiences of struggle the author proceeds to analyse how Africans themselves with agency of their own have thought emancipation during various historical political sequences and to show how emancipation may be thought today in a manner appropriate to twenty first century conditions and concerns

Children's Rights in Africa Julia Sloth-Nielsen, 2016-05-23 This collection is anchored in an African conception of children's rights and the law and reflects contemporary discourses taking place in the region of the children's rights sphere The majority of contributors are African and adopt an individual approach to their topic which reflects their first hand experience The book focuses on child rights issues which have particular resonance on the continent and the chapters span themes which are both broad and narrow containing subject matter which is both theoretical and illuminated by practice The book profiles recent developments and experiences in furthering children's legal rights in the African context and distils from these future trends the specific role that the law can play in the African children's rights environment Decentralization and Constitutionalism in Africa Charles M. Fombad, Nico Steytler, 2019-09-10 This collection of essays assesses the efforts of African governments to constitutionalise decentralisation be it in the form of federalism local government or traditional authorities Since the end of the Cold War jurisdictions across Africa have witnessed an ostensible return to multi party democracy within the paradigm of constitutionalism and the rule of law Linked to the democratisation process many countries took steps to decentralize power by departing from the heavily centralized systems inherited from colonial regimes The centralization of power typically characterized by the personalization and concentration of power in the hands of leaders and privileged elites in capital cities mostly resulted in repressive regimes and fragile states As decentralisation is a response to these challenges this volume analyses the dynamic relationship between the efforts to implement decentralization and presence or absence of constitutionalism This volume examines a variety of forms and degrees of decentralization found across Africa It advances a new understanding of trends and patterns and facilitates the exchange of ideas among African governments and scholars about the critical role that decentralisation may play in democratization of and constitutionalism in Africa

Discrimination and Access to Justice in Africa Wellman Kondowe, Paul Svongoro, 2025-05-23 There are different forms of discrimination Among others people can be discriminated against on the basis of their ethnic grouping political affiliation race gender age and language This book focuses on linguistic discrimination in Africa acknowledging that language plays a key role in the delivery of justice and much of what transpires in justice systems deals with language use It argues that to achieve fairness the state has a responsibility to put in place accommodations aimed at reducing linguistic vulnerability The collection interrogates some of the issues that are common in Africa which is arguably one of the most linguistically diverse continents in the world bringing together a collection of case studies from Malawi South Africa Zimbabwe Tanzania Kenya and Zambia It presents practical insights from academics legal professionals and social scientists Divided into five thematic parts the first addresses communication and linguistic challenges faced by children in the legal system Theme 2 examines the position of witnesses with physical challenges The third theme focuses on language as a barrier in access to justice Theme 4 looks at the language of the court as a major barrier to the poor and the illiterate The fifth and final theme examines the position of women in sexual assault cases The collection will be of interest to academics researchers and policymakers working in the areas of law and language human rights law criminology linguistics and African Studies

Media and Democracy in Africa Michael Leslie, 2017-07-05 Recent discussion of democratization in Africa has focused primarily on the reform of formal state institutions the public service the judiciary and the legislature Similarly both scholars and activists have shown interest in how associational life and with it a civil society might be enhanced in the countries of the African continent Much less concern however has been directed to the communications media although they form a vital part of this process Media and Democracy in Africa provides the first comprehensive and up to date assessment of the role of the media in political change in sub Saharan Africa The central argument of the volume is that while the media

may still be relatively weak compared to their positions in liberal democracies they have come to play a much more important role than ever before since independence Although they have not yet demonstrated sufficient effectiveness as public watchdogs and agenda setters they have succeeded in creating new communicative spaces for people who have previously been intimidated or silent Building on this the contributors argue that a different conceptualization of democratization than the mainstream currently uses may be necessary to capture the process in Africa where it is characterized by contestation rather than consolidation This volume shows that the media scene in Africa is diverse It stretches from the well developed and technologically advanced situation in South Africa to the still fledgling media operations that are typical in sub Saharan Africa In these countries print media as well as television and radio are just beginning to take their place in society and do so using simple and often outdated technology The volume also examines how these growing outlets are supplemented by informal media the so called radio trottoir or rumor mill whereby the autocratic and bureaucratic direction of public affairs are subject to private speculation and analysis Media and Democracy in Africa is organized to provide a historical perspective on the evolution of the African media placing the present in the context of the past including both colonial and post colonial experiences It will be of interest to Africa area specialists students of media and communications political scientists and sociologists
