Post-Traumatic Art in the City comprises an original analysis of the nexus of war art and urban society in two specific contexts: late 20th century Beirut and Sarajevo. With an emphasis on conceptions of the post-traumatic, De le Court explores how cities and art are mutually formative in war and post-war contexts, providing unique insight into the politically and psychologically driven art scenes from within the works of art themselves. Grounded in close analyses and new research, the book makes an important contribution to the fields of art history and trauma studies.

Edward Said's Translocations Tobias Doring, Mark Stein, 2012-04-27. Working with processes of translocation enabled Edward Said to point out interdependence and complementarity across geographical borders and disciplinary boundaries while recognizing cultural difference and the distinct historical experiences of colonizer and colonized. This book brings into focus Said's politics of reading from his literary criticism in English to his political columns in Arabic. The international contributors from Britain, Egypt, France, Germany, India, Switzerland, and the United States investigate his intellectual legacies without necessarily identifying themselves with the critical positions these involve. Instead of treating his work as a unitary theoretical system, the various arguments explored offer a critical assessment of those situations in which his writing has entered into a productive relationship with other theoretical positions and interlocutors. The collection considers location, which has always been a central category in and for Said's writing, readings which designate the acts by which, according to Said, the world comes to be constituted and legacies which pertain to the many fields across the boundaries of established academic disciplines that have taken up Said's challenges. The critical positions visited in this book include critical and cultural theory, postcolonialism, literary studies, theatre and performance studies, and visual and music studies.
