Reforming Human Services Change Through Participation:

Reforming Human Services Hans Toch, J. Douglas Grant, 1982-11 In this book the authors try hard not to downgrade the continuum of work related problems The authors stress this continuum by surveying the highlights of recent organizational reform including as reviews must the classics that have inspired reformers This book is in part a primer or a summary recapitulation of today's trends in organizational change theory and experimentation It is also a blueprint and as such contains a prescription or model of planned change The prescription is eclectic It combines elements of what are now the mainline work reform strategies job enrichment quality of work life and action research into a package that we hope is coherent and deployable In this book the authors contend that workers work best and most contentedly that they are most apt to exercise ingenuity and decency and helpfulness when they have a voice in shaping organizational goals and defining their own jobs This ideal condition which the authors call grass roots management is neither utopian nor revolutionary nor hard to create The authors shall outline how organizational democracy can be achieved and how it has to varying degrees been attained The authors shall suggest why the strategy works why in fact it must work In this connection the authors assume that strategies vested in classic management have been tried and found wanting Reasons for the shortfall are many some have to do with changing needs or expectations some with needs we have known but ignored The reason whichever it may be is academic because manifest needs of workers whether they are new or discovered are intense and irreversible If we ignore workers needs we violate human nature And nature as the commercial points out has a way of avenging itself when it is violated Preface

Reforming Human Services Hans Toch, J. Douglas Grant, 1982 The authors feel that management techniques adopted from industry have created bureaucratic demands that are not suited to agencies trying to provide responsive humane assistance They suggest an approach that draws from democratic management principles to involve front line human service workers in the decision making process They demonstrate using studies of industrial democracy including their own study of criminal justice agencies that such organizational structures encourage a more committed attitude by practitioners It provides a realistic analysis of the problems and successes that may confront researchers managers trainers and consultants in their endeavors to reform the human services The book should be
